British Set War Stage, Reds Warn

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, March 12 (AP)—A special writer in the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia declared today if Winston Churchill's proposals concerning British-American military co-operation met success they would "sharply change for the worse the already tense" world situation.

In the Russian press' second attack in as many days on Churchill's March 5 speech at Fulton, Mo., Izvestia said Churchill had this assumption of future events:

"The Soviet Union will offend England somewhere and then the transatlantic brothers (the Americans)—so ardently loved by the British—will boil with indignation and come to the rescue."

The article, written by the academican, Eugene Tarle, said that Russia would not allow a repetition of 1941 and would "not permit even a most modest preparation for an attack on our borders."

"Today in some English newspapers," the writer said, "has slipped the dangerously untrue words: 'Russian people respect force. Show them we are strong.'"

Declaring those who tried to show force to the Russians always have lost, Tarle said: "The Russian people can never be so irritated by anything as efforts to frighten them. Churchill knows better than many that Hitler buried himself and the 'Third Reich' precisely by such an attempt. Why, then, does the Fulton orator summon the two great Anglo-Saxon peoples into such a fatal road?"

The article said Americans already have noted "Churchill obviously assigns the primary role to the United States and not to England in the future struggle which he is trying to inflame with all his strength.

"All the sinister action with which he (Churchill) reproached the Soviet Union violates only the interests of England and not of America."

The writer, a 70-year-old Soviet historian who has much prestige in the Soviet Union, insinuated the British labor government is behind Churchill by declaring Churchill and Foreign Secretary Bevin were encouraging Russia's southern neigmbors where, he said there is a "bad impasse."

Tarle touched on the question of the world's "newest weapon." He said Churchill wants very much to convince his audience there is still a monopoly of this weapon.

"If old Bernard Shaw is to be believed," said Tarle, "then Churchill is late and no kind of alarms, although they be prophetically more powerful than Jeremiah and sweeter than Psalm-singing King David, will help here. The idea of the laconic statement of Shaw can then perhaps seemingly be expressed more broadly thus—inasmuch as England cannot fight earlier than within five years the eloquence of Churchill should not disturb the mind very much.

"We think first of all that England does not want to fight. Today's England—that is not the country of Churchill or even of those diplomats who through inexperience suppose that a table should be hammered without sparing one's fist—will not help very much in diplomatic conflicts.

"But if England, the people of democratic intelligent England, does not desire that she, on the basis of invented fear and frightened with foolish phantoms, be precipitated into a new catastrophe, then hardly will America, which remains more aloof from these phantoms than England, be frightened by the prophetic shouts of Churchill."

Connally for Big 3 Red Crisis Meeting

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON, March 12 (AP)—Sen. Connally (D.) of Texas, today called for a new Big Three meeting to discuss "in language clear and plain and if need be, blunt," issues he said otherwise may blaze into world friction. Connally, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, sounded an optimistic note on relations with Russia—provided they are based on such plain speaking. But he told his colleagues Russia must understand that while she has the unchallenged right to maintain any form of government she wants, "these rights do not extend beyond her boundaries."

Connally called for maintenance by this country of "an adequate army, a superior navy and a superlative air force." These, he said, would back up American determination not only to resist aggression by arms, but to "oppose aggression by economic or political pressure or maneuver."

Pinning his hopes on the United Nations, the Texan said so long as Russia, Great Britain and the United States "remain loyal to the obligations of the charter and adjust differences as they arise, there will be peace."

But, he added, "those who want peace must not commit acts that tend to provoke war."

Expressing belief the Soviet Union does not want war, Connally said he believes mutual understanding and cooperation with Russia "are not insuperable."

"Russia can have peace by cooperating with the United Nations," he declared. "Her responsibility is great, because her power is great."

Connally's speech, which he said he had discussed briefly with Secretary Byrnes, carried on the newly-instituted policy of plain-speaking about Russo-American relations to which Byrnes and Sen. Vandenberg (R.) of Michigan recently lent their voices.

It is time, Connally said, for a new meeting between President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee and Generalissimo Stalin. He said the Big Five foreign ministers ought to meet frequently, too.

"In frank conversations face to face—in candid explanations, eye to eye—in language clear and plain and, if need be, blunt, many questions which might otherwise result in serious international friction could be adjusted," he declared.

Asserting enemies of democracy will attempt to drive "wedges of suspicion and distrust into the ranks of the United Nations," Connally said its members must not act individually but must pull together for peace.

"We fought the war together—we must maintain the peace together," he declared.

Hoover Urges Americas To Join in Saving Food

WASHINGTON, March 12 (AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover said today supplies of cereal now available to avert starvation in war-torn countries are 8,000,000 to 9,000,000 tons short of minimum needs, but believes all but 1,000,000 or 2,000,000 tons of the deficit could be made up through reduced consumption in the United States and other western hemisphere countries by July 1.

Hoover, honorary chairman of President Truman's emergency committee appealing to the United States to cut its use of wheat by 40 per cent and of fats by 20 per cent, said his committee and the agriculture department will seek 5,000,000 tons of cereal from Latin American countries.

South American countries need coal, oil and other industrial products, Hoover said, and a program of helpfulness would provide those countries with such things in return for cutting down on consumption of food.

He expects to fly to France Sunday for a tour of food shortage countries. There is a possibility he might also go to India.

Asked whether he believed Germany and Japan should be placed at the bottom of the list in distributing limited food supplies, Hoover replied:

"I'm interested only in saving human lives."

Hub Cooks Cut Menus to Feed Hungry Europe

Off went the luscious top deck of thousands of three-layer cakes today, in the cupboards went the bread-trays that well-fed Bostonians stuffed upon from hotel tables, and knives and forks were sharpened to cut bread into thinnes possible slices.

Hotels and restaurants throughout the city have started immediately to comply with the President's voluntary program to cut down on food to help the starving people abroad.

One of the first to support the President's program was John W. Stokes, president of the Massachusetts Restaurant Ass'n, who sent the following telegram to the White House:

"In behalf of 15,000 public eating places in Massachusetts and New England, we assure your committee of our hearty co-operation in the effort to save wheat, fat and oils in order to feed those in other parts of the world who are in such dire need."

Some restaurant men, so moved by the words in the morning papers, "Save bread—save rice—save a life," made an immediate study of Truman's 39 ways to save food and served luncheon accordingly.

One of these was Antonio Rossetti at the Marliave, Bosworth st., downtown.

His chef, Ludovico Dantonio, broiled the luncheon steaks instead of frying them; sandwiches were brought in on one slice of bread instead of two, and orders were given bakers to make pies with no top crust.

And one customer, finished her dinner, remarked:

"I am ashamed to think that such a little sacrifice is mine, and that going without things we'll never even miss will save millions from dying."

AUTOMOTIVE—CIO United Auto Workers' leaders continue conferences in 112-day General Motors strike, declare unity to reach settlement; union's national Ford council objects to parts of Ford Motor Co. contract.

State UNO Folk Rap Churchill

Educators, clergymen and labor leaders, members of the United Nations Ass'n of Mass., wrote to President Truman today urging him to disassociate himself and the nation from former Prime Minister Churchill's "repudiation of the United Nations."

"We believe that only by the full use of the United Nations may peace be made and kept," the letter said. "The speech by Mr. Churchill at Westminster College is contrary to our belief.

"No matter what 'stiffening of our attitude' Mr. Churchill hoped to engender, he has given pleasure and support to every individual and movement undercutting our participation in the United Nations. His speech set us back to the place where we must fight even for the existence of the United Nations.

"We ask you to disassociate yourself from Mr. Churchill by pointing out no such military combination as he advocated is thinkable under the United Nations Charter and that no such charges and comparisons of Russia and Germany as he made are possible except before the bar of the United Nations."

Mother Wants Her Abandoned Baby

LAWRENCE, March 12—The mysterious mother who last week abandoned her infant daughter at an undertaker's door pleaded by letter today that she might reclaim her child a year hence—when she "gets on her feet" and "gets some money."

Mom Writes

Police Chief Francis V. O'Sullivan disclosed he had received a long letter from the distraught mother, saying her "heart was aching" and that if given the chance she would come back for the child in exactly one year.

"BABY FRANCES'" MOTHER SAYS SHE WILL RETURN
Asks Child Be Cared for Until She Can Come Back

The baby, christened Frances by her mother, was left in a basket at the door of Mrs. Raymond Keefe, Salem st., wife of an undertaker. A nail pushed into the bell assured the child would be promptly found.

O'Sullivan made public the letter today along with announcement that little Frances will be taken into district court Thursday by an agent of the Massachusetts Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children and there treated as an abandoned child.

This is the new letter, in part:

"I read about how many people want to adopt my Francis. But please don't let them, please hold her for me until I get my home together and a job and a little money saved so I can take proper care of her. For I do love her, I love her and miss her terrible.

"Keep the religious medal that was pinned to my baby's clothes. It was mine when I was a girl. I am thankful for the pictures of my baby in the papers. They will never let me forget my child. Don't think I'm a silly woman and not married, because I was.

"Don't think I'm bad for what I done. I thought it was the right thing at the time, now I no better. Please give me one year from today to get things together and I'll come and get her. I will keep you posted every month.

"I promise and vow as God is my judge. For I want her very much. Let me no by the papers where she will be and in a year I'd be there. I no I don't deserve it, but she is mine and my heart is aching and she is never out of my mind."

The letter was unsigned.

Kidnap-Bandits In $850 Holdup

Posing as police plainclothes men, two bandits today kidnaped George Burkard, 55, of Fremont ave., Roxbury, a contracting company estimator, and robbed him at gunpoint of $850 cash.

Burkard, employed by the Ward General Contracting Co., told police the pair approached him as he was entering his car, parked in Hampden st., Roxbury.

The leader, a dark-complexioned man wearing green glasses, claimed they were special officers and, after forcing themselves into the car, ordered Burkhard to drive to Police Headquarters.

When Burkard asked to see their credentials, he said the glasses-wearing stranger pulled out a nickle-plated revolver and forced him to move to the center of the front seat.

They then forced their victim to hand over his wallet, containing $750, and removed an additional $100 from a trousers pocket. One man took over the wheel and drove several blocks to Cedric and Magazine sts., where Burkard was pushed out.

The car was found abandoned a short time later at Magazine and Shirley sts.

Chatty Sailor Robs Charlestown Waitress

An ash-lond Navy sailor, about 25, today quaffed several beers in a Chelsea st., Charlestown, cafe and then robbed the waitress at "stick-point" of $19.

Mildred Smith of Joyner st., Charlestown, told police the sailor had been chatting amiably until the moment of the robbery. She said he picked up a sharp stick, backed her into the kitchen and took $14 from her handbag. He then grabbed $5 from the cash register.

4 Firemen Hurt in Crash Of Engine 13

Four firemen were injured while responding to a Roxbury fire today when Engine 13 swerved to avoid a collision at Sterling and Cabot sts. and toppled a hydrant before plunging into the side of a dwelling.

The injured, all taken to City Hospital, were Lt. Charles Clougherty, 43, Huntington ave., Hyde Park, possible fractured pelvis; Hoseman Thomas Sheehan, 31, Bower st., Roxbury, questionable fracture of the back and left shoulder; Hoseman Emilio Marino, 36, Bower st., Roxbury, brain concussion, and Hoseman John Goode, 28, Cliff st., Roxbury, back injuries.

Marino, driver of the engine, was going up Sterling st. as a truck driven by Francis L. Gass of Codman pk., Roxbury, came out of Cabot st.

The former told authorities he swerved to avoid striking the truck head on. He grazed the vehicle and plunged straight ahead into the hydrant.

Woman Dies As Car Skids Into Train

A Waltham woman was killed and a recently discharged overseas veteran was critically injured today when their auto skidded into the path of a Clinton to Boston train at the Prospect Hill rd. crossing in Waltham and was demolished.

Victim of the crossing tragedy was Miss Frieda Ohlsen, 54, of Lawrence st., Waltham.

At Waltham Hospital, her neighbor, Albert Lindstrom, 26, of Hawthorne rd., was treated for fractures of the skull and left leg and internal injuries. His name is on the danger list.

The couple were on the way to their employment at the J. L. Thomson Co., buckle manufacturing plant in Waltham.

Except for sudden illness this morning, Lindstrom's mother, Mrs. Ida Lindstrom, employed at the plant, who ordinarily drives with them, would have been in the car. Her last-minute decision to remain home saved her.

Lindstrom was driving down the steep grade to the crossing as the train approached. Gateman Michael Connors started to put down the gates, but when the one on Lindstrom's side stuck he came out of his shack with a disc stop signal.

Lindstrom applied the brakes, but the car skidded on the slippery grade and slid onto the crossing, coming to a stop in the path of the oncoming train.

He opened the door and clambered to the running board when the train struck the car, the impact flinging him 20 feet to the embankment.

Miss Ohlsen was thrown through the open door on the other side and hurled several yards to the roadbed.

The demolished car hit the gate barrier, snapping it off, then rolled to the embankment.

Lindstrom returned to work last November after his discharge from the service. His father, Albert Lindstrom, Sr., was killed six years ago when struck by an auto in Main st., Waltham.

Dr. Thomas M. Gallagher, medical examiner, said Miss Ohlsen died instantly.

Judy Garland Has Baby Girl

HOLLYWOOD, March 12 (INS)—A daughter, their first child, was born today to screen star Judy Garland, and Director Vincente Minnelli.

Miss Garland underwent a Caesarian operation at the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital.

Judy and her husband had expressed hope their first child would be a girl. They named her Liza. She weighed six pounds 10½ ounces.

Both Miss Garland and her daughter were "fine."

2 Wives, 35 Tenants, 1 Flat Add Up to Trouble Aplenty

A 28-year-old Back Bay man with one apartment, two wives and 35 married couples yelling for his scalp was morosely thinking the situation over in a Boston police cell today.

He was arrested and placed in the lineup this morning after four persons, all strangers to each other, complained they had given him deposits for the apartment but that he refused to vacate.

The fellow told police he was merely protecting his "financial condition," in case they reneged at taking the apartment. They asked him if he were married. "Twice-married," he said. He tried to remember his first wife's name. "I know it as well as my own," he fumed. Finally it came to him.

Soon after they led him away to try and remember if he had divorced No. 1 before wedding No. 2, his No. 1 arrived to tell him he hadn't, but she still loved him. When she had gone, No. 2 visited him to tell him her love was still strong.

This afternoon more than 30 couples, having read of the matter, stormed the Back Bay station to complain he had mulcted them by accepting deposits on the apartment he wouldn't leave.

Police think he should have his chance in court—tomorrow.

State Reports Urged to Curb Vivisectionists

The least the State can do to stop the theft of pet dogs and cats for vivisection is to require vivisectionists to report their sources of supply monthly, so such thefts would be traceable, Edmund W. Hadley of Newton, president of the Anti-Vivisection Society of America, declared before the legislative committee on legal affairs today.

EDMUND W. HADLEY
Urges Anti-Vivisection Bill

Hadley appeared in support of House Bill 117, which would outlaw experimentation on cats and dogs except for remedial purposes. The measure was sponsored by George R. Farnum, head of the New England Anti-Vivisection Society.

Previously, Joseph Strickland, investigator for the New England organization, had testified juveniles were being paid 65 cents a head for stealing cats.

Hadley said an investigation of his own had disclosed that not long ago every Persian cat in Somerville had mysteriously disappeared. "This was at a time when vivisectionists were known to be looking for that type of animal," he related. He added:

"Vivisectionists will tell you they obtain their cats and dogs from establishments which breed them for such purposes. Some of them are from breeders—but our investigations have convinced us they are very few."

Sen. Edward M. Rowe of Cambridge, chairman of the committee, read a letter in which he quoted President Conant of Harvard as admitting that stolen pets had been found in the Harvard Medical School in 1937 but promising there would be no repetition of it.

Also read was a letter from Episcopal Bishop Henry Knox Skerrill, approving vivisection by "competent and responsible men."

Bishop Sherrill wrote it was "absurd sentimentality to place animals above men and women."

The pro-vivisection' fight was led by Atty. Charles J. Dunn, counsel for the Medical Society of Massachusetts and the medical schools of Harvard, Tufts and Boston University.

Dunn sponsored the appearance of Brig. Gen. Elliott C. Cutler, chief surgeon of the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital and professor of surgery at Harvard.

Cutler championed vivisection as having been the cornerstone on which technique in blood plasma and whole-blood transfusions was developed and perfected for the wounded of World War II.

Dr. William E. Murphy, Nobel prize winner and authority on anemia, credited vivisection with having contributed much to knowledge of improved treatment for anemics.

The legislative committee hoped to conclude its hearing later in the afternoon.

Balkans Skies Sealed by Reds

WASHINGTON, March 12 (AP)—National Aeronautics says Russian suspicion has "effectively sealed" central Europe against American and British air services except in Poland and Greece.

An article for the March issue says aside from the U. S. S. R. itself, European air travel is most restricted in Hungary, Bulgaria and Rumania, Axis satellites.

Russia itself, the article adds, is a "no man's land" so far as foreign planes are concerned.

U. S. Waits Red Manchuria Note

WASHINGTON, March 12 (INS)—State Secretary Byrnes said today he will not make public the contents of United States exchanges with Russia on the Manchurian issue until his latest note is answered by Moscow.

The United States can make no statement on whether southern Tyrol will be given Italy or Austria.

Other highlights of Byrnes' conference:

There is no disparity between United States policies as applied to Argentina and Spain.

Plans call for Byrnes' attendance at the United Nations security council meeting March 21.

INDICT GEORGE L. BERRY

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 12 (AP)—U. S. District Attorney Horace Frierson announced today the indictment of George L. Berry, former U. S. Senator from Tennessee and labor union official, on charges of income tax evasion for the years 1939-40-41.

Realty Man and Partner's Wife Shot in Hotel Mystery

CHICAGO, March 12 (AP)—A business man and his woman secretary were mysteriously shot and seriously wounded today in a hotel lobby and the desk clerk told police he saw man in evening clothes leave just after the shooting.

Victims of the shooting in the Devonshire Hotel were Charles L. Kuhnel, 45, a real estate dealer, and Mrs. Patricia Ann Fisher, 38, his secretary and wife of Harry L. Fisher, Kuhnel's partner. They were taken to a hospital.

The hotel is near the Rush st. night life district and was the locale of the unsolved brutal brick murder of Mrs. Florence Thompson Castle, June 29, 1936, a night club hostess.

Detective Sgt. William Walsh said Kuhnel told him he was unable to recognize the man who shot Mrs. Fisher in the left breast and Kuhnel below the heart.

Sgt. Walsh said Mrs. Fisher's husband could offer no motive for the shooting. Walsh said Fisher told him he knew his wife and Kuhnel were together.

Capt. Thomas Duffy, acting chief of uniformed police, said a full dress suit was found on a bed in a room at the Berkshire Hotel, which adjoins the Devonshire, and that part of a revolver was found under a mattress in the room.

MRS. JAMES NICOL, DAUGHTER, SUSAN
Deplores Vivisection

Mother Asks Bill to Outlaw Vivisection

Mrs. James Nicol of Blossom st., West End, has a special reason for loving dumb animals.

She feels so strongly House Bill 117 should be passed, that she trudged to Gardner Auditorium today to hear the speeches before the legislative committee on legal affairs.

"I brought my 7-month-old baby, Susan, because I had no one to leave her home with. You may be sure she is going to have many dogs and cats for playmates while she is growing up. She may need their friendship sometime, just as I did," Mrs. Nicol said.

"I was given to an orphanage," she explained, "because my parents didn't want to bother with me.

"I found after I was 10 years old that my best friends were cats and dogs. I had only them to talk to in my poverty and loneliness," she said.

"In the past five years I have had about six dogs and six cats. Each autumn they have been stolen from the street near the house.

"Last year two boys, one about 17 and the other about 23, told me they were gathering cats in sacks to try to sell. They didn't charge medical schools with buying them, but they said they hoped to sell them to students enrolled for the new term.

"They said I was a quack and shouldn't be such a softy," she added.

Mrs. Nicol said she hoped the bill would be passed, and that the public would be educated further through magazines, newspapers and movies so they could keep in constant touch with the treatment of the animal kingdom.

Costly Hams

KALAMAZOO, Mich., March 12 (AP)—One hundred firemen and spectators were guests last night at an impromptu barbeque when fire partly destroyed a meat shop smokehouse and consumed a ton of ham and bacon.

Most of the meat was destroyed but one of the proprietors found enough hams properly cooked to provide sandwiches.

These Days

An Interesting Man

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1946, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

IF A BUSINESS MAN has a scheme and wants $5,000,000—more or less—my solemn advice to him is to get next to somebody who knows somebody in Washington who has an in.

Now, I do not know Nick Bez. He may be a good man, a kind father, a loving husband, a patriotic citizen.

My first contact with his name was a picture in "Life" of July 9, 1945. In a rowboat are five gentlemen. One stands, waving a hat in his right hand; in his left is a king salmon which the caption says "he did not catch."

He wears a very gay and fancy sweater. His face is wreathed in a smile. His bow-tie is sartorially perfect. His name is Harry Truman.

Beside him sits Governor Walgren of Washington. Rowing is Nick Bez. The others are not identified.

I was attracted by the name Bez. I had never seen it before. So I inquired who is Bez?

Somebody told me he was associated with the United Committee of South Slavic Americans. He must be something more than that, said I to myself, to be rowing the President of the United States in the company of the Governor of Washington.

THEN I FOUND that Nick Bez had been set up by the American government in a special fishing business to the tune of $3,750,000—a floating cannery and factory ship and five trawlers being conditioned and constructed for him.

The recommendation so to do was made by Marvin Jones of the Defense Plant Corporation on March 26, 1945, which perhaps is why the aforesaid Nick Bez is so full of smiles as he rows in June the President who holds a dead fish in his left hand.

Now before me lies a report of the United States Department of the Interior, Fish and Wild Life Service—all managed at that time by Harold Ickes, now resigned and relegated to writing a column.

In spite of the fact that on August 31, 1945, J. B. Hutson, acting Secretary of Agriculture, advised RFC that Nick Bez' project was no longer essential and that his department was unable to reaffirm its former recommendation, Brother Ickes' bulletin, "Fishery Products Report Number 274 (Continued)" says of Nick Benz' project:

"Sponsored by the War Food Administration, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation agreed to finance the establishment of an American-owned fishing enterprise in the Pacific as a measure to assist in the prosecution of the war effort. The completion of the project was assured Dec. 21, when the Reconstruction Finance Corporation announced that the undertaking would be continued."

Note: This circular was issued on Dec. 26, 1945; V-J Day was Sept. 2, 1945. How come, Mr. Ickes was still assisting "in the prosecution of the war effort?"

THE TOTAL PROJECT is described as follows in Harold Ickes' circular:

". . . The steel cargo oceangoing vessel, the S. S. Mormacray, obtained from the War Shipping Administration, for several months has been in process of conversion into a factory ship for the freezing, processing and canning of fish, and it is estimated that the conversion work will be completed early next year. This vessel is 8368 deadweight tons, 5946 gross register tons and 3744 net register tons, and is now in the yards of Bellingham Iron Works, Bellingham, Wash., where it is being equipped and converted into a factory ship . . . It is contemplated that four steel-constructed trawlers of approximately 165 tons each, all Diesel-powered, will either be built or otherwise acquired to be used in catching and conveying fish to the factory ship."

Now here is a project that concerns the Department of Agriculture, the State Department, the Department of the Interior, the RFC, the Ward Food Administration, the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion and they all get moving fast on it.

It is a bit puzzling and I should like to know who this Nick Bez is that he can get all these great men hopping around to serve his purposes, particularly after the Department of Agriculture said that his scheme had no value as there would be enough protein around.

SUSPECT RELEASED—Los Angeles police, who had been holding a Hollywood cement mixer on suspicion of murder in the slaying of Mrs. Diana Sparks (above), today released him. The body of Mrs. Sparks, former film dancer, was found in a shallow grave in a San Fernando Valley lovers' lane Sunday. She had been missing since Jan. 29.

The five are Carl A. Testa, 27, of McKean st.; Alfred Zani, 25, of Palfrey st., and Ralph Scalzi, 24, of Lexington st., all of Watertown, and Rene Biganzoli, 19, of Thetford ave., Dorchester.

Flier's Sleuths Find Wife With His Rival

How an Army Air Forces veteran set detectives on the trail of his missing wife, only to find her in a luxurious hotel room with another man early on Feb. 22, was revealed in municipal court today when the couple received suspended jail sentences on a morals charge.

The woman, a comely brunette who wore furs in court, was Mrs. Ann Fitzgerald, 26. Judge Daniel J. Gillen gave her three months' suspended sentence.

Salvatore Modestino, 36, of Pleasant st., Watertown, received a six months' sentence, suspended, and was fined $10 for violation of the true name law.

Police Sgt. Joseph W. Kiley testified her husband, Robert Fitzgerald, 26, of Center st., Newton, appeared at the North End station at 2:30 a. m., accompanied by a lawyer and two friends, with a complaint his detectives had traced Mrs. Fitzgerald to the Hotel Manger.

The group then visited the hotel, Kiley told Judge Gillen, and found the couple occupying a $10-a-day room under the names of "Mr. and Mrs. D. Wilson of Dedham." According to the hotel register, they had been living there since Jan. 10, the sergeant said.

He testified he was met at the door of the room by Modestino, while Mrs. Fitzgerald, clad in a dressing robe, hid in a bathroom.

Sgt. Kiley quoted Fitzgerald as saying he had served in the Army three years, during which time he corresponded with his wife and provided her with regular pay allotments.

When he returned home last September, his wife had disappeared, Fitzgerald told police.

Modestino, described as an enamel manufacturer, was reported estranged from his South Boston wife. Judge Gillen said he was suspending Modestino's sentence only for the sake of his wife and family.

When the judge asked Fitzgerald if he had anything to say for his wife, his reply was, "I'm through with her."

HELD IN HIT-RUN CASE

BROCKTON, March 12—Robert Magnuson, 21, of Oliver st., Randolph, alleged operator of a hit-and-run car which fatally injured Alphonse Malutis, 28, father of three small children, late Saturday, pleaded not guilty in district court today and was held in $1600 for hearing Saturday.

Court Reverses Parole Ruling

Arthur Schena, 24, of Kingman ave., Revere, given an indeterminate sentence as a defective delinquent July 19, 1944, was released in custody of his brother by Judge John V. Mahoney in Suffolk Probate Court today.

James Warren, Bridgewater state farm superintendent, agreed to the parole and Asst. Atty. Gen. Conde Brodbine said the youth would not be injurious to himself or the public.

Schena was committed by the late Judge Roscoe Walworth in Chelsea District Court on charges of drunkenness and breaking a window.

Brodbine told Judge Mahoney today the youth was recommended for parole almost a year ago but that the proposal had been turned down by the parole board.

Papers introduced in court today showed that Parole Board Chairman Matthew Bullock had stated that "in view of the psychiatric report the subject must serve a longer term before being considered for parole."

"I feel that our defective delinquent laws make no provision for minor defects and throw all of them into one category," Brodbine said. "I am in favor of more institutions being built and defectives classified and not just thrown together."

False Alarm Fun

Weary Chelsea firemen from five stations were wishing their police force colleagues the best of luck today in the capture of a dark man, driving a dark sedan, who in the dark of the early morning rang six false alarms within 45 minutes.

Witnesses gave the police his description, and said that, after pulling the last box at Addison and Carter sts., the man chortled and vanished toward Everett.

The first alarm, from a box at Sagamore and Garfield ave., came at 4 a. m.

Fumes Kill Boy, Sister In Lowell, Fell Mother

LOWELL, March 12—Eight-year-old Francis Deschenes and his sister, Jacqueline, 7, died today as the result of inhaling fumes from a gas stove, and their mother, Mrs. Beatrice Deschenes, was in a critical condition at St. Joseph's Hospital, while authorities investigated several unusual features of the tragedy.

Their bodies were found on two beds by the father and husband, Paul Deschenes. Francis died on the way to the hospital. His sister's life ebbed away later.

Deschenes told police he had gone to his work at the Waterhead Mills at 2:45 p. m. yesterday and returned home early this morning. He said he was unable to unlock the door of his apartment because the key had been left in the lock.

Unable to get any response to his knocks and shouts, he then smelled gas and ran to the nearby office of the East End Cab stand and telephoned police.

Officers Victor Alfferriere and David McCarthy responded in a cruiser and had to break down the door.

They found the boy, Francis, dead in bed, while the mother, Beatrice, 33, and Jacqueline were unconscious across another bed. Both the boy and girl were in their nightclothes, but police said the mother was fully clothed.

U. S. Opens Drive To Stop Sale of Sleep Tablets

A New England-wide drive against indiscriminate sale of sleeping tablets in some drug stores, which he declared resulted in deaths and the development of addicts, was ordered today by Cyril C. Sullivan, chief of the U. S. Pure Food and Drug Admi office here.

Sullivan disclosed that one type of barbiturate, known to be habit-forming and menacing to health, is widely sold without physician's prescriptions.

Sales increased noticeably during the war and use of the tablets became widespread among war plant workers. In many instances, he asserted, women war workers quieted their children with the pills, unaware boys and girls would suffer after-effects of extended drowsiness and stupor.

Overdoses of the pills, Sullivan said, have been responsible for numerous deaths, including that of the movie star, Lupe Velez, last year.

First offender to appear in court as the result of investigations preceding the current drive was Peter P. Eckman, 48, of the Cottage Pharmacy, Dudley st., Roxbury. Federal Judge Francis J. Ford fined him $200 and imposed a $200 fine on his firm after Eckman pleaded guilty to violation of the pure food and drug act.

Asst. U. S. Atty. Alfred G. Malagody told the court Eckman sold a small quantity of sleeping pills without prescription.

Sullivan later said the campaign was intended especially to put a stop to unrestricted sales of a certain brand of tablet, improperly labeled, the containers lacking adequate directions.

PW Rushes Season, Trapped

Absence of a coat and hat today betrayed Georg Austen, 31, escaped German prisoner of war from Ft. Devens, as he sauntered along Lowell st. in the West End.

Austen, facing the breeze in Army trousers and shirt, was stopped for questioning by Special Officers Dennis Mahoney and Walter Nickerson. He readily admitted his identity, and in perfect English.

"I just thought I'd like to see Boston," he said. "I had some money so I took the trip. I slept in a chicken coop last night and continued my journey this morning."

Austen was turned over to the FBI.

Chelsea Girl, 16, Reported Missing

Isabel Tilly, 16, of Cottage st., Chelsea, was sought by police today after her father, Herbert Tilly, reported her missing since Thursday.

She was described as five feet two inches, 100 pounds, medium complexion, having brown hair and hazel eyes. She was wearing a pink coat, brown shoes and brown hose when he last saw her.

Restaurants Flayed as Filthy

Rep. John C. Wickes of Boston, member of the legislative committee on public health, today charged that "our restaurants are positively filthy."

He made the statement during a public hearing on a bill which would require health commissioners to examine food and drink dispensers in restaurants and stores every six months.

Wickes addressed his remarks to James C. Gahan, Jr., counsel for the Massachusetts Restaurant Ass'n, who opposed the measure.

Gahan answered that local boards of health are empowered to bring proprietors of unclean establishments to court where they can be fined $100 for the first offense and $500 for subsequent convictions.

Rep. Diniz Jacinto (D.) of New Bedford and Rep. William X. Wall (D.) of Lawrence supported the measure.

State House Briefs

State Fuel Administrator Edward P. Parry today sought the release to Massachusetts wholesalers stocks of coal held at various inactivated Army installations throughout the State.

Pointing to inequalities in the law whereby women receive more severe penalties for adultery than men, representatives of the Judicial Council, Massachusetts Civic League and the State Department of Correction today urged the committee on judiciary to recommend legislation reducing the sentence imposed on a woman convicted of adultery.

Frank W. Grinnell, secretary of the Judicial Council, suggested a cut in the sentence for women from five to two years. At present, women are sentenced to an indeterminate term of five years, while men are sentenced to a maximum of three years.

Spokesmen for the Massachusetts Conservation Council, appearing before the legislative committee on department rules and regulations, rapped politics in appointments to key jobs in the State Dept. of conservation.

This practice has resulted in a waste of natural resources and a lack of continuity in long-range policies, declared representatives of 16 sportsmen's organizations in demanding an investigation of the department and its administration.

Final Rites Held For Mrs. Casby

Mrs. Celia Casby, wife of James F. Casby, West End restaurant owner, was buried today in St. Joseph's Cemetery, West Roxbury, following a solemn high mass at St. Peter's Church, Dorchester.

Mrs. Casby died Saturday at St. Margaret's Hospital following a short illness.

Public Library Civil Service Bill Urged

Supporters of a bill to place under Civil Service all employes of the Boston Public Library, except the director, will try to seek consideration of the measure in the House today, despite an adverse report by the joint legislative committee on Civil Service, which voted 11 to 4 to shelve it until the next session.

The measure, Senate Bill 175, is backed by the state AFL and CIO, as well as the Women's Trade Union League, Boston Central Labor Union and Local 731 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes.

Its minority support in committee came only from House Democrats Dennis P. Glynn and Robert G. Connolly, both of Boston; Michael F. Skerry, Medford, and George J. O'Shea, Lynn.

Kenneth C. Barnes, executive committee secretary of the Public Employes Union, described the bill as the "culmination of 10 years of patient yet persistent effort by organized employes of the library to have established there a personnel system which would raise professional standards to the heights demanded by the international reputation of the library."

The employes organized, he said, because a combination of conditions had brought their morale to a low point.

"These were," he said, "a beginning rate of pay of $12 a week, a span of more than 10 years when no step-rate increases were given except to a few employes, and the creation within less than two years of six highly paid executive positions—three paying $7000, three paying $5000—without any open competition or even a statement of minimum qualification."

Few library school graduates seek employment at the Boston Public Library, Barnes said. Of those who have taken positions there within the last six years all but one have resigned, while a number of highly trained librarians have left for other posts, he stated.

The library trustees have recorded their opposition to the Civil Service measure, partly on the ground that few libraries in the country are staffed under Civil Service and then primarily as an offset to political interference. Political influence is not a factor here, the trustees hold.

Her Camera Eye Jails Thief

Victim of the "camera eye" of a Roxbury woman, James B. Halliday, 25, a Negro, of Bowed st., Roxbury, was sentenced to two and one-half to three years in Statt Prison by Judge Nelson P. Brown today after he pleaded guilty in Euffolk Superior Court to an indictment charging robbery.

Halliday was charged with knocking down Mrs. Mary Birkenhead, 27, of Waverly st., Roxbury, and taking her handbag on Dec. 27.

He was arrested when Mrs. Geitha Bovelle, also of Waverly st., who witnessed the robbery from a window of her home, recognized him in a street car in Dudley st., two months later.

Special Officer Daniel Flood of the Dudley st. station told the court that snapshots of the Birkenhead family, which had been in the woman's handbag, were found in Halliday's wallet.

UAW Denounces OPA Plan To Boost New Car Prices

WASHINGTON, March 12 (AP)—A CIO-United Auto Workers official blasted today at OPA's plans for new car price increases, saying this means "not a bulge in the price line but an explosion."

"If OPA," said Donald Montgomery, UAW consumer counsel, "plans to give price increases to the auto industry, then they'll be dishing them out by the bucket."

Montgomery made these statements to a reporter after OPA announced that higher prices are on the way for Chrysler, Ford and Hudson cars. These companies applied for increases to offset pay boosts granted under the Administration's wage-price formula.

Milk, butter and gasoline also are on the list of items on which pressure is being applied to OPA for higher prices.

An OPA official estimated the price hike probably will not exceed 3 per cent (or $45 on a $1500 model), and he predicted dealers might be required to absorb part of it.

Montgomery said that "of all industries, the auto industry is least entitled to price increases."

Chrysler, Ford and Hudson are the only firms which have applied for price increases thus far. Other firms for which ceilings have been set include Studebaker and Nash. None have been announced for the strike-bound General Motors line.

Her fishing trip on Georges Banks ordered cut short, the Boston dragger Francis C. Denehy was racing to shore today in an effort to bring a crew member, William A. Kinsella of Everett ave., Dorchester, home in time for funeral services for his infant son.

The 3-weeks-old baby, William, died Sunday night.

The dragger is expected to reach the Fish Pier late tonight.

Funeral services for the baby have been scheduled for 2:30 p. m. tomorrow with burial in Mt. Benedict Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Kinsella and his wife, Catherine, are parents of two other children, Elizabeth, 3, and Dorothy, 1.

Trawler Strike May End Soon

Chairman Gen. Charles H. Cole of the state board of arbitration today reported the first sign of a break in the fishermen's strike that has tied up 33 Boston trawlers 11 weeks, depriving the port of at least 30,000,000 pounds in catches.

"There never before had been the slightest hope of a settlement until today," Gen. Cole said. "But there is a glimmer now and we can expect further good news at a meeting scheduled Friday."

Fishermen sought a 60-40 split in catches, with owners getting the 40 per cent. The prevailing basis was a 50-50 division.

Meeting with Gen. Cole were representatives of the Atlantic Fishermen's Union, AFL, and the Federated Fishing Boats of New England and New York, Inc.

Essex Asks State To KO Flies

The greenhead fly in Essex County is getting so bold he bites "summer people" as well as year-round residents, the legislative committee on public health was told today.

Prominent citizens, including John P. Marquand of Newbury, best-seller author, petitioned for a legislative investigation of the greenhead.

"A very troublesome nusance and detrimental not only to residents but summer people," Sen. Cornelius F. Haley said of the carniverous insect.

Dr. Vlado A. Getting, state commissioner of public health, was in favor of a legislative probe.

The powerful new chemical, DDT, might dust off the greenhead, suggested Edward Wright, chairman of the state reclamation board, and Robert Whales, state entomologist.

The petitioners want the legislature to earmark $7000 for a two-year detective job to find the greenhead's weak spot.

New French Plea To U. S. on Spain

PARIS, March 12 (AP)—The French cabinet today approved a new note to the United States and England in support of its contention Spain's Franco government is a threat to peace and should be so considered by the United Nations security council.

Foreign Minister Georges Bidault delivered the note to U. S. Ambassador Jefferson Caffrey and British Ambassador Alfred Duff Cooper. Both America and Britain turned down France's original request to send the matter to the security council.

In carrying the Spanish question before the United Nations, France would like to achieve a four-power economic blockade of Spain, and a formal rupture of relations by the United States and Britain.

Britain Launches U. S. Hunt For PW Love Tangle Child

LONDON, March 12 (INS)—The British foreign office today instructed its embassy in Washington to begin a nationwide hunt in the United States for the 4-year-old daughter of Mrs. Marie Yvonne Millne, central figure in a strange Anglo-American romance.

Mrs. Millne slipped out of England and took her daughter to the United States despite an injunction obtained by her husband, formerly a prisoner of war in Japan, making the child a war in chancery.

Another figure in the case is John Seymour MacDonald of Pasadena, Cal., who met Mrs. Millne while he was on Army duty in England. Mrs. Millne believed her husband had been killed by the Japs. She and MacDonald fell in love and decided to marry.

Meanwhile, Millne turned up safely and while he did not at first oppose his wife's plans he later obtained the injuction forbidding her to take their daughter out of the country.

Whereabouts of MacDonald and Mrs. Millne are not known. Millne's family in Pasadena has expressed sympathy for them and a willingness to help straighten out the matter, but they deny they are hiding the couple.

Shot at Wife Called Accident

Joseph Bruno, 25, a discharged veteran and a fisherman now on strike, pleaded innocent in South Boston court today to a charge of assault with intent to kill his wife, Angelina, in their East Second st., South Boston, home.

At police request, Bruno, who allegedly fired a single revolver shot that missed, was committed for 35 days' observation at the Psychopathic Hospital. The couple have two children.

Bruno was picked up by Sgt. George Gardner at the home of friends in Emmett st. after neighbors complained that they had heard a shot in the Bruno home. He was carrying a .38-calibre revolver from which one shot had been fired, police said.

"My wife and I had a little family argument," Sgt. Gardner quoted Bruno as saying. "I pointed the gun at her just to scare her. It went off by mistake."

Stole U. S. Secrets, Gets Important Post

By RAY RICHARDS
Boston American Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, March 12—Emanuel Sigurd Larson, fined $500 last year for the theft of secret documents from the State Dept. in behalf of the pro-Russian magazine "Amerasia," has been assigned to a confidential mission in the Far East by the War Dept.

However, Larson's application for a passport has been held up by the State Dept., in the Far Eastern division of which he was employed at the time of his arrest last June.

Information that the War Dept. now wants to use Larson as a civilian agent in a critical area followed within a few days the department's promise that it would no longer employ Communists on "sensitive" duty.

Larson would be the second of six arrested in the Amerasia case to be assigned to the Far East, where the U. S. is now in active opposition to Russian destruction of Manchuria and where the U. S.-Russian ideologies are in increasing conflict in China and Korea.

John Service, another State Dept. worker arrested by the FBI for supplying state secrets to the magazine, was sent to Japan as a State Dept. advisor to Gen. MacArthur after the Federal grand jury, on advice of the Justice Dept., failed to indict him.

Another ex-defendant, Mark Gayn, Russian-born writer, was eventually furnished credentials by the State and War Depts and permitted to go to Japan as a correspondent for radical newspapers in this country.

When he was indicted, Larson entered a plea of nolo contendere, and paid the fine.

Philip Jaffe, editor of Amerasia, pleaded guilty and was fined $2500.

Indictments were not returned against Gayn and Kate Mitchell, assistant editor of the Russian propaganda publication. Charges also were dismissed against Navy Lt. Andrew Roth.

When the Justice Dept. stultified the work of the FBI and Office of Strategic Services, some Congressmen were aware that the evidence on which the arrests were based was of gravest nature, that 15,000 documents containing confidential government information, some of it top secret war security data, had been found in the magazine's offices.

The indignation of the congressmen resulted in introduction of a House resolution for an investigation. The House Rules Committee ordered the resolution for congressional investigation of the Amerasia case brought to the floor by Thursday.

The committee would be instructed to search out the reason the Justice and State Departments did not treat the six defendants as importantly as the evidence indicates they deserved.

Veterans' Friend

By JAMES F. McENANEY

Q—I would like to know if they are still enlisting girls in the Women's Reserve of the Canadian Army; also are they going to reopen enlistments in the WAC? V. A., Cambridge.

A—I don't have any information on the Canadian Army, but regarding the WAC, a former member of the organization may re-enlist and retain her seniority and rank held at time of discharge. Application may be made at Procurement Office, First Service Command, Boston.

Q—My son served in the Navy for two years, one year of which was overseas. Although he received a bad conduct discharge, is he eligible for mustering-out pay and state bonus? M. E., Dorchester.

A—Not entitled to mustering-out pay but may apply for state bonus providing discharge was not given under dishonorable conditions.

Q—I enlisted in the Navy the latter part of 1936 at Houston, Tex. In 1941 I established my permanent home here in Boston. Would I be eligible for the state bonus in Massachusetts after I am discharged? J. J., Boston.

A—There is a question in connection with your case which must be decided by the State Treasurer, relative to your legal residence and to what state your enlistment during the war was credited. Suggest you write State Bonus Div., 15 Ashburton pl., Boston.

Q—I was discharged from the Army, Nov. 15, 1945 at Ft. Devens. There was a mistake made on my discharge regarding my middle initial. Where could I have this corrected, as it has caused me considerable difficulty in applying for certain veterans' benefits? E. R. M., Charlestown.

A—I would suggest that you contact Personal Affairs Office, First Service Command, 808 Commonwealth ave., Boston 15. They may be able to expedite correction on discharge.

Q—A friend of mine is the widow of a World War I veteran and she is now ill in a local hospital. She has a son 18 years of age who is serving with the Marine Corps. Being a dependent, is she entitled to government aid, if so where should she apply? D. R., Somerville.

A—Her son is eligible to apply for an allotment for his mother. Suggest that she contact local Red Cross authorities who will assist her in filing proper applications.

Towns Approve Appropriations

Higher living costs and return to peacetime ways were among issues reflected today in decisions taken at more than a score of town meetings in Massachusetts.

Towns voted larger appropriations and many approved higher salaries for town employes despite evidence these moves will bring higher tax rates.

In Wakefield, a 20 per cent pay boost for all employes was voted and a $3 tax raise was expected.

Hingham voters appropriated $1,074,243, adjourning until Saturday when they will vote on a $2,000,000 sewer project and on other expenses.

Voters approved a $300,000 school for South Hingham, but turned down plans for alterations and additions to the present high school.

Two statewide issues received favorable endorsements. In Wakefield and Andover voters approved a reduction in working hours of town firemen from 84 to 70, and Amesbury voted for equal pay for women teachers performing the same duties as men.

In Scituate voters favored equal pay for women teachers by 740 to 215 in the lightest balloting for many years in the town.

Scituate also elected W. Irving Lincoln to his seventh consecutive term as selectman with a total of 802 votes to 756 for Philip S. Bailey. In the other close contest, Mrs. Emma L. Damon was re-elected to the school committee with 777 votes to 709 for William Apperson Gardner.

Students Enthuse Over Oratory Test

By BERT FORD

With interest at top peak, students in Boston public and parochial high schools and in colleges throughout the Greater Boston area are holding their intra-mural contests this week, with only 27 schooldays left, preparing for the Boston finals in the 1946 Hearst Newspapers National Oratorical Contest.

Names of the winners of these intra-mural contests must be in the hands of the Contest Editor by April 3, a week before the Boston finals on April 10 in Faneuil Hall.

With students in 44 public and parochial high schools competing, some of these schools have already announced the names of their individual winners.

The subject of the contest: "Andrew Jackson, Seventh President of the United States," has proved an inspiring one to young people, and it is gratifying that many discharged veterans who have returned to high schools and colleges to complete their education under the G. I. Bill of Rights are taking an active and enthusiastic part.

The intra-murals must be completed during the week of March 24, so that the contest editor, by April 3, will have the names of the winners, and a week to prepare for the Boston finals, to be held April 10 in Faneuil Hall.

Boston College joined the lists of other Greater Boston colleges yesterday, with letter of endorsement from Dean Stephan A. Mulcahy, S. J. Fr. Mulcahy writes:

"Boston College is very happy to participate in the annual Hearst Oratorical Contest. Already plans are under way for the trials on Friday, March 22. Rev. Joseph E. McInnis, S. J., will be in charge of the contest at Boston College."

Eastern zone finals will be held in Boston, April 24, and national finals on May 2, both in Boston Latin School. Prizes in national and local awards, totaling $25,000 in Victory bonds, will be divided equally between high school and college groups.

Local prizes are: First, $150; second, $100; third, $75; fourth, $50; fifth, $25. An additional $50 bond will be awarded every contestant reaching zone finals.

Routs Indians

Of major importance in the War of 1812 was Gen. Jackson's campaign against the Creek Indians. Here to a marked degree he showed those qualities that indicated his military stature.

In quelling mutinies in his own Army, in the severe chastisement given the Indians in the 12-day excursion culminating in the routing of the Indians at Enotochopco, there was high display of energy and sagacity.

First A-Bomb Navy Test May Be Flop

WASHINGTON, March 12 (AP)—Atom bombardiers say the first act of the Bikini tests this spring may be a dramatic flop. The big target fleet may show little real damage.

But the men who'll touch it off suggest the explosion above the array of warships will demonstrate the dreadful versatility of the atomic bomb.

It could, they say, kill or cripple entire crews of intact vessels, thus prove an anti-personnel weapon of tremendous magnitude.

In a sense, the atomic bomb will be mis-used in the first of the three tests—a land weapon against a naval target. Studies predicated on Nagasaki and Hiroshima, where the bombs were exploded in mid-air as they will be in the first Bikini drop, indicate the possibility few, perhaps none, of the approximately 100 target ships may be sunk.

This may be especially true if the ships are anchored bow-on to the bomb burst, so the streamline character of the hulls and superstructures let some of the blast slide past.

The first test will specialize on an analysis of radiant energy produced by the bomb burst—the instantaneous burning effect of heat in millions of degrees and the effects of short wave radiation which kills men. The other two tests, one with the bomb exploded at surface and the other under water, will be a test essentially of the ships themselves.

The flash heat, exposure to an instantaneous but highly concentrated dose of radioactivity and shock transmitted through the air to crush internal organs accounted for part of the 80,000 deaths at Hiroshima and 45,000 at Nagasaki.

Atom experts think a bomb exploded within a reasonable distance of a warship could so cripple its crew the ship would be virtually helpless, even though its machinery, hull and fighting material remained undamaged.

Red Cross Girls Greet Vets Here

A postwar reunion was in progress on Boston Common today as many servicemen and discharged veterans visited the Red Cross clubmobile "Rocky Mountain," and received coffee and doughnuts from the same three girls who were with it from England to Germany.

Its sides decorated with Army insignia, the battle-scared vehicle is on exhibition in Lafayette Mall, opposite West st., where it will remain until tomorrow when it will begin a tour of Greater Boston communities in the 1946 Red Cross campaign.

Comprising the three-girl crew are Martha Stengel of Newton, Pa., Elizabeth Gross of Minneapolis and Elizabeth Wooddell of Greenbank, W. Va.

With but two weeks to go to raise $1,901,150 in Boston and 39 adjacent communities, the drive has brought in 60 per cent of its quota to date. Next official audit will be announced at a luncheon Thursday noon at the City Club.

49 Aussie Brides Arrive in N. Y.

NEW YORK, March 12 (AP)—Forty-nine Australian war brides, weary but happy after a 12,000-mile trip from Melbourne, arrived here today by train.

All but three were re-united with their husbands or relatives of husbands.

Travelers Aid workers prepared to take Mrs. Alex Rudelowitz of New Britain, Ct., and Mrs. Walter Kuell and Mrs. Joseph Santos of Providence, R. I., to their new homes.

The group, originally 99 in number, sailed from Melbourne three weeks ago, landing at San Francisco then coming East by train.

390 War Brides Sail From France

LE HAVRE, March 12 (AP)—The second group of GI brides to leave Le Havre this month sails from Southampton, England, today aboard the S. S. Vulcania on way to the United States.

The 390 French, Belgian and Luxembourg wives and 36 babes will be joined in Southampton by approximately 300 British brides.

Among those aboard was Mrs. Nicole O'Conner, who met her husband, Capt. John O'Conner of 149 Cummins hwy., Boston, in Rome, where he was liaison officer with the American Fifth Army.

Atom Test Ships Get House OK

WASHINGTON, March 12 (AP)—The House today passed, 314 to 25, and sent to the Senate a bill authorizing the Navy to use approximately 100 warships for the atomic bomb tests in mid-Pacific this spring.

The House then proceeded with consideration of a measure authorizing the government to sell, lease or give China another 271 surplus small vessels. They are intended to become the nucleus of a new Chinese navy.

ANTIDOTE FOR INFLATION

THE AMERICAN people should hail as contemporary Paul Reveres the 16 Representatives and Senators of both parties who have set out to fight inflation.

These men, members of the Joint Committee on Non-Essential Federal Expenditures, have forthrightly exposed the major infantilism of the Truman Administration, which purports to fight inflation while ignoring the causes of inflation.

They stand out in sharp contrast to Chester Bowles, director of economic stabilization, who in an immature way expects to avoid inflation by dealing with symptoms, while shutting his eyes to the tendency of the Administration to stimulate inflation.

Recognizing the impending crisis resulting from too much money and too few goods, the members of the committee demand an immediate stop to the ruinous practice of feeding the fires of inflation with additional Federal deficits.

They do not want to defer this action until some distant date, but insist that it begin at the outset of the new fiscal year starting next July 1.

Senator Byrd, chairman of the committee, and his colleagues believe that economy in government, representing a reversal of the inflationary procedures, is a SPECIFIC REMEDY for the nation's threatening financial ills.

They advocate scrutinizing EVERY ITEM which goes into the new Federal budget.

They turn thumbs down on proposals for a huge public works program at a time when the citizens are suffering from acute shortages of housing and consumer goods.

Until accumulated wartime shortages are made up, they want the government to cease competing with the citizens for scarce manpower and materials.

ABOVE ALL, they want the government to stop OVER-EXPANDING THE CURRENCY by unending DEFICIT FINANCING through the commercial banks.

Instead of the proposed deficit of at least four billion dollars for the next fiscal year, they want to balance the budget through rigorous economy on the spending side.

And they point out further that under peacetime conditions the country cannot afford and does not need "the biggest public works program in our history."

It stands out in sharp contrast with the specious reasoning of the large array of bureaucratic manipulators and White House cronies, who, in the spirit of blue sky, purport to fight inflation while the causes of inflation are permitted to flourish.

Moreover, the issue constitutes an intelligence test for Americans everywhere.

Unless citizens are aroused to fight the ballyhoo which, if unchecked, will impair the value of life insurance and savings, their complacency and inertia will make them parties to additional fiscal follies which are to be expected.

If we are to salvage the purchasing power of the dollar and the debts and insurance written in terms of dollars, we the American people should immediately take the ball from the spendthrifts and money manipulators on the executive side and pass it to the prudent leaders in Congress.

SENATOR BYRD and his group warn that, as the late President Roosevelt aptly remarked during the campaign of 1932, the hopes of democracy are too often dashed on the rocks of fiscal imprudence.

Mr. Byrd and his associates have given the people the opportunity to embrace good, constructive policies and methods.

The Hearst newspapers urge all their readers forthwith to write or telegraph their own Senators and Representatives to build into the forthcoming Federal budget the principles of solid thrift and honesty which the Joint Committee on Non-Essential Federal Expenditures has so well expressed.

To fail to act in this manner at this critical moment is to be inert in the face of the impending dizzy dance of uncontrolled inflation.

Oh, my beloved!
How divinely sweet
Is the pure joy
When kindred spirits meet!
—MOORE.

HAVE YOU a daughter over six feet tall? Is she depressed about her height? Tell her to dry her tears and cheer up. She, too, may have a future in films. As proof of this, I offer in evidence a telegram received from our New York office: "Have you in your files name and address of attractive girl over six feet tall you wrote about living in New York? MGM read about her in your column and is looking for such a gal, offering her a contract and trip to Hollywood." This telegram is highly gratifying to the tall girl specialists of our Horses & Women Department. It indicates their campaign to prove girls over six feet can be glamorous is not in vain.

THAT IRISH LOVE SONG: "Bridget Donahue," which Morton Downey is going to sing, certainly must have topped the hit parade in the elegant '80s. The number of people who have fond memories of this ditty is astonishing. I have one reader who heard it sung Morton Downey by the composer, Johnny Patterson, Irish comedian, for the first time. This historic event took place in Jefferson, Ia. This reader's father was a friend of Patterson. In 1880, the genial, silvery voiced Irishman called on him and said: "I have written a song. It is called 'Bridget Donahue.' I'll sing it for you. Tell me frankly what you think of it."

FROM BROOKLYN: "I sent you the name of the musical piece played by the British band when Cornwallis surrendered at Yorktown." writes Clayton Werner of Brooklyn. "But don't send me a stogie. I am only 13 years old and don't smoke. My dad doesn't smoke, either. We like your Mules & Men Department. My mother has a Neck and Ears Department for my brother and I."

FROM SEATTLE: "You have criticized girls who streamline their names by the insertion of a 'Y' as in Alyce, Edythe, Grayce. You have also objected to young women using names intended for men such as Pat, Mickey and Billie," writes a Seattle subscriber. "This criticism irritates my beautiful blonde daughter whose name is Billie. But that's her problem. My squawk is this: What do you mean by not saying Seattle has the finest harbor in the world?" (Note: We are also being harassed by San Francisco and New York clients as to the "finest harbor" question. We have decided to put the query to seafaring men and will abide by their decision. Attention is called to the fact a harbor could be the world's "most beautiful" harbor and yet not be considered the "finest" from a practical shipping standpoint.)

QUERY FROM A CLIENT: Q—Am a naval officer who does a lot of reading when at sea. Could you name an author who wrote in the same gay and romantic style as William J. Locke? A—To name an author whose "gay and romantic style" equals that of Locke in "The Morals of Marcus Ordeyne" is difficult. Are you familiar with Leonard Merrick? How many times have you read Du Maurier's "Trilby"? Anyway, I can see we have something in common. I shall answer you further by letter.

BIG RED: "What was the highest weight ever carried by Man o' War?" asks a Baltimorean. This query catches me when I am away from the office without my racing manual. However, I believe the most weight "Big Red" ever packed was 138 pounds in a mile and a sixteenth race at Havre de Grace, which he won easily.

LADIES: Why is it so many women have young looking faces and old looking hands? Are there no hand rejuvenating departments in beauty shops? Or is it something that can't be done? . . . A Chicagoan says there never was a vaudeville act named Harry Fox and the Dolly Sisters. It was Harry Fox and the Millership Sisters. He states Harry was in vaudeville with his wife, Jean Dolly, but never with both Dolly Sisters. "And don't bet me any stogies on this," the gentleman concludes. "I know, I married one of the Millership Sisters."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1946, King Features Syndicate

Owners of small homes, mansions, farms, farms, estates, village stores and other property who are unwilling to surrender their lawful possession to the UNO, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt writes that if she had been in a like situation, "no personal consideration" would have outweighed the possibility of helping to establish the United Nations.

Westbrook Pegler

"This organization may save our country and others from the kind of human misery which another war must inevitably bring," she added, "and for that end no sacrifice is too great."

If my understanding of her late husband's will is correct, Mrs. Roosevelt's position here is purely academic. I believe he left her no owner's interest in the ancestral real estate at Hyde Park.

Furthermore, the record shows no indication that the President or his family ever made any sacrifice of wealth in the interest of Americans or the peoples of the world but, on the contrary, often prospered enormously.

MRS. ROOSEVELT, herself, is no amateur in her service to the organization which may save our country and others from the kind of misery which another war must inevitably bring."

The job which she holds pays at the rate of $12,000 a year, plus $25 a day for expenses.

This income, entirely aside from her proposed pension of $5000 as a President's widow, is much greater than the income of most of the families in the Westchester-Greenwich area who would be dispossessed.

Since her return from Europe, Mrs. Roosevelt has been on tour again, lecturing under professional management. Her old fee, in the role of First Lady, in several instances, was reported to be $1000 per appearance.

With her box-office power stepped up again by reason of her new publicity, the promoters have been able to charge a $2.40 top even in small cities.

Altogether, then, far from serving the United Nations at a sacrifice, Mrs. Roosevelt seems to be still pursuing the old profit motive, even in her effort to spare the world the human misery which she foresees as a possible alternative to the success of the UNO.

IF WE ASSUME too much in assuming that these revenues are strictly private income for private use we are guided by the sales talk published by the advertising agency which offered her as a radio attraction to the Latin-American coffee nations.

They not only emphasized her position as the President's wife but held out the enticing probability that, for her fee, Mrs. Roosevelt would "describe how the Presidential cup of coffee is made and, of course, it will be made with heaping tablespoonfuls of coffee and one for the pot."

There was no representation that this money, so frankly attributed to the highest elective office in the nation, was to be shared with anyone or any cause.

On past performances, then, I cannot readily entertain the thought that Mrs. Roosevelt is sacrificing too much for the United Nations.

And if any further instance were needed to outweigh my wistful credulity it would be found in the recent inquiry in the State of New York whereby Jimmy Roosevelt, as one of his father's executors, sought to know whether his late pere could be regarded as a military man on active service in his role of commander-in-chief; in which case the heirs would get a small remission of taxes paid and payable on his income for 1945.

That Mrs. Roosevelt should so denounce citizens for clinging to their homes would be a shocking experience to victims not previously prepared for such statements.

AMERICANS BELIEVE in law and the right to possess property yet, here, not only are they threatened with denial of that right but pilloried as monsters.

The proposition here is that no other place in the United States would be suitable for the UNO when the truth is that the regions of New York and Washington are the worst possible selections, underlaid and permeated with racial, political and religious issues imported from the Old World that promise ghastly troubles.

A village doctor in the region innocently states his case.

"When our homes are jeopardized as well as our means of livelihood, which in my case took many years of study and hard work," he writes, "you just can't sit back and let it happen. We are all in favor of the principles of the UNO but they have no right to take our homes and businesses when other sites are available."

Hollywood

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, March 12—I have always said—and say it again—that you have to get up early to get ahead of Sam Goldwyn. Now, what do you think he's planning? To have the first American-owned television station on the European continent, and, of all places, in the Eiffel Tower in Paris. This is not wistful thinking because Goldwyn's television engineers have already set in motion arrangements to install a television station in the famous tower.

Patricia Knight

Negotiations have been carried on with Etienne Marc for space in the neck of the Parisien landmark now occupied by the U. S. Army Signal Battalion. The tower was requisitioned by the U. S. Army, but it will be turned back shortly to the Societe de Tour Eiffel administrators, at which time the Goldwyn space will be available for lease. Everybody knows the famous Eiffel Tower, so I won't go into further explanation except to say, atta boy, Sammy!

MAYBE CORNEL WILDE didn't come off with a prize in his hand for "Song to Remember" at the Awards, but he certainly had a prize on his arm at the event. Patricia Knight, his beautiful blonde wife, was photographed as often as the better known glamor girls when she walked in with her husband. And who knows? Maybe next year she may be an Oscar candidate, for her career is going all right at 20th. She has tested for the role of Lord Carlton's wife in "Forever Amber," and producers on that lot are very impressed with her work in "It Shouldn't Happen to a Dog."

THIS IS ABSOLUTELY my favorite casting of the year—Michael Chekhov, who was that simply wonderful little doctor in "Spellbound" may play the Jewish father in "Able's Irish Rose." That outstanding producer of fine sons and slow horses, Mr. Bing Crosby, who is also the producer of this Irish-Jewish classic, and Director Eddie Sutherland want Chekhov for the role, and Michael is very enthusiastic about playing it. All he's holding out for is a view of the script. I'm herewith sending the scenario writers a brace of the best pencils, all pointed in Tovarich Chekhov's direction, to help them in their work.

CRISSWELL, one of our local soothsayers, can take a few bows on his predictions of the Academy Awards. He sent me a few predictions which I printed several months ago. He said Joan Crawford and Ray Milland would win the Academy Awards and the best song would be "It Might as Well Be Spring." He also said there would be a stock market crash. Does he know anything else that I should be passing on for our readers?

BUTCH JENKINS may be a pain in the neck to his directors and a source of continual worry to the mamma, he wouldn't let play a part in his picture, but to Ching Wah Lee, of the famous Chinese house of Ming, he's a relative. Lee worked with the boy and was so crazy about him he wrote his relatives in China and obtained an official adoption. When Butch gets all his teeth back and grows a little older and goes to China the red carpet will be rolled out for him. He's a relative, isn't he?

HERE'S A MOVIE worth attention, and more power to independent producer James S. Burkett for planning it, based on the Constitution of the United States and "We the People." I heard an argument the other day that serious, worthwhile movies, minus gams and glamor, won't go over at the box office. But there's never been a time when Americans should remember more clearly what this country stands for than today. And I'll say that again, and again and again. Basis for the film will be "We the People," a book on the Constitution written by Herman Hagedorn, widely known as the biographer of the late Theodore Roosevelt.

MY COLLEAGUE, Pat Greene, dramatic editor and music critic of the Los Angeles Examiner, has turned author. Pat has sold a story to Fascination Magazine which appears in the March issue. He's calling it "Belle of Montana," and it is a very colorful yarn and would make a good movie (hint to producers).

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: When Jean Sablon completes his engagement at Ciro's, Howard Hughes will fly him to Paris; John Decker is illustrating the cover on Errol Flynn's next book, "Good Deserving Girl"; Roscoe Ates, the stuttering gentleman, glimpsed at the Club Donroy with Mary Ruth Milman; Wynne Gibson has sold her house at Malibu and is saying farewell to Hollywood. She is with the Ethel Merman show in New York; Betty Grable fairly knocked them cold at Santa Anita by showing up in a mink coat and her hair in pigtails. Only in Hollywood would that happen; the Gail Russell-Guy Madison romance must belong to yesterday's news because he seems to be everywhere with Cathy Downs.

WHEN CLARK GABLE was in Phoenix his constant companion was Mrs. Betty Chisholm, a blonde heiress to an iron mine fortune. She is a widow; Celeste Holm and writer Tom Monroe are finding each other excellent company; Phil Reagan will be the singer at the indoctrination ceremony of Cardinal Stricht at the Chicago Stadium; Paramount is drawing plans to take over a theater in Westwood so their young actors may be seen in legitimate shows; Basil Rathbone is selling his Bel Air home and he and Ouida will make their home in New York; the William Cagneys are getting close to a financial settlement and when that's reached she will sue for divorce; Desi Arnaz is considering an offer to star in "Casa McCluskey," a musical written by magazine editor Lester Grady; that precocious child of Joan Davis, 12-year-old Beverly, is publishing her first book of poetry. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, March 12—Mr. Dan Markel, who is one of our most genial journalists—not having been in Washington very long—came in today looking very sour.

"This is the screwiest town," he snarled. "Nothing is where you expect it to be. It is always somewhere else.

"For instance," continued Mr. Markel, working his way into a good irk, "I have to go over and see about my Social Security. But is the Social Security Office in the Social Security Building where it should logically be? No, it is to hell the other side of town."

"Well," I said, always the comforter, "that is a small matter. What else is eating you?"

"A lot," snapped Mr. Markel. "The other day I wanted a story from the Census Bureau, so, naturally, I went to the Census Building. But the Census Building has nothing to do with the Census Bureau; in fact, no one over there seemed to have heard of it.

"Then there is the Defense Building. It has nothing in it having to do with defense. And where is the Navy? In the Munitions Building!"

I left Mr. Markel muttering that he supposed he would go to the Labor Building some day and find it is a maternity hospital.

IF ANYONE KNOWS of any other misnamed buildings in town will they please let me know. It will be a great comfort to Mr. Markel.

MRS. LAWRENCE H. SMITH, wife of the Congressman from Wisconsin, reports that her husband is trying to figure a way out to get a veteran's disability pension for a dog.

This animal, the property of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Reidwig of Monroe, Wis., was drafted in the Army in May, 1943, and was graduated in Camp Butner, N. C., with high honors. But that was the last the Reidwigs heard of their pet.

In recent months, however, they learned that other dogs—including many who had not half the length of service—were being discharged. Their own efforts being unavailing, they enlisted the aid of Rep. Smith.

Using his congressional drag, Mr. Smith located the beast. It was still at Camp Butner, in the 49th Scout Dog Platoon, but when he asked for its discharge he was informed the dog was essential.

Mr. Smith, who is not one to be put off lightly, asked in what manner the dog was essential, but no one seemed to know. He kept hammering away and finally was informed the dog would be released but that it would first have to go to the "De-Agitation Center" at Front Royal, Va.

Rep. Smith, who has never been sufficiently agitated to require de-agitating, asked what the devil that was and was told it was a place where Army dogs were sent for rehabilitation; to be re-oriented for civilian life so they wouldn't bite the wrong people and such.

Mrs. Smith said the dog finally got home to Monroe, Wis., and was as gentle and lovable as ever.

WOULDN'T YOU THINK, with only ten women in Congress, there would be enough names to go around? But no—half of them have got to be Chase or Douglas.

The darn copy-cats are Emily Taft Douglas, Helen Gahagan Douglas, Helen Douglas Mankin, Margaret Chase Smith and Chase G. Woodhouse.

Note of warning: Do not ask Emily Taft Douglas or Helen Gahagan Douglas if they are related.

Memo from Mr. Frank M. Smith, the eminent reporter:

"At 9:30 this morning I called Senator Pepper's office to ask him about a story. I was told, coldly and emphatically, by the Capitol operator that Senator Pepper does not answer his telephone until 10 a. m.

"Imagine my embarrassment when I called to tell Columnist George Dixon about this strange situation only to find that Columnist George Dixon does not answer his telephone before that hour, either.

"It's a new wrinkle on the 10 o'clock curfew—or have you previously noted same?"

Boston After Dark

IRVING BERLIN is planning to write the story of "This Is the Army" . . . He devoted three full years to the show's creation and guidance . . . The London premiere of the all-Army musical brought out more high brass than any other single performance in history . . . More than 60 generals were in the audience . . . The entire royal family, including the dowager Queen Mary, was present, and the rulers of Britain went backstage after the performance.

THE FIRST NIGHT at the Rome Opera House was another highlight of the tour . . . Members of the international set who had been underground for seven years made up that audience . . . For the first time since Hitler and Mussolini teamed up, hundreds of famous persons who were out of sympathy with the Fascist regime met one another . . . They are dressed in their best, with hair-dos of the modern fashion and wearing jewels which had been in hiding for years.

WHEN IRVING GETS TO BOSTON, April 1, for the dress rehearsal of the new show "Annie Get Your Gun," which he composed for Rodgers and Hammerstein, who are producing, Berlin may be willing to discuss his visit with His Holiness Pope Pius XII . . . Irving was the first civilian of the Jewish race in America to have an audience with the Pope . . . On behalf of the Jews of the world and of America, the famous composer thanked the Holy Father for the great work he authorized in giving sanctuary in churches and rectories to thousands of Jews . . . Many of these Jews were refugees from Austria, where the Nazi chase was most relentless.

"THIS IS THE ARMY" commandeered the Opera House in Rome the day after American troops took the city . . . The opening performance was scheduled for three days later . . . The house was completely sold out in a day . . . Berlin toured with the show he wrote all through Europe and the Pacific . . . When it was not possible to troupe the entire show of 150 soldiers and equipment in small islands of the Pacific, Irving and a few assistants would fly to tiny outposts and give a show in which Berlin was the chief performer . . . He had worked out a 45-minute act of his own, which—in spite of his small voice—was very professional and effective.

BERLIN HAD AN OPENING gag that put the American boys in good humor instantly . . . He told of an experience of his in Hollywood, when "This Is The Army" was being made into a film . . . Irving was present in a projection room when the scenes shot during the day (rushes, as they are called) were being played back . . . Two projection men were in the booth, and Irving and other executives of the picture were seated in the projection room.

THE PROJECTION men now played back the scene in which Berlin sang "Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning" a revue which Irving had written when he was at Camp Upton in World War I . . . The scene was played, and Irving's reedy voice and forlorn appearance in the broad-brimmed campaign hat of World War I did not combine effectively—not without the help of audiences who later were to applaud that small scene more enthusiastically than any other sequence in the picture.

IRVING'S BIG scene was played back to utter silence . . . Then from the projection booth, the booming voice of one of the projection men suddenly filled the small amphitheater . . . Said the voice: "I bet the guy that wrote that song is turning over in his grave when he hears this fellow sing it" . . . Irving—who was both the guy who wrote the song and the fellow now singing it — was never more embarrassed in his life.

QUOTATION in Harper's Bazaar, August, 1945, from a speech by Gen. Eisenhower: "At one stretch in our trip (through New York city) this morning the Mayor told me there were 450,000 school children . . . I looked at them carefully . . . I suppose they averaged 12 years old . . . Can the parents and the relatives of those children look 10 years ahead and be satisfied with anything less than your best to keep them away from the horrors of the battlefield? . . . It has got to be done . . . It is not enough that we devise every kind of international machinery to keep the peace . . . We must also be strong ourselves . . . Weakness cannot co-operate with anything . . . Only strength can co-operate."

Broadway

By Dorothy Kilgallen

Copyright, 1945, King Features Synd., Inc.

NEW YORK, March 12—Hollywood croons of oranges and sun, palms and swimming pools, husky children and beautiful girls—but never of its native son. Good reason, too, for its native son becomes that only through time—he was nurtured on Broadway.

Dorothy Kilgallen

Let's begin with some of our press agents of yesterday. Morrie Ryskind, Hollywood's top-notch scenarist at $5000 per week when he wants to work, is a good starting point. He was a member of the old Fox publicity setup before he graduated to writing a Pulitzer prize-winning play, "Of Thee I Sing."

And his collaborating lyricist on that effort, also a solid citizen of the Broadway terrain, was Ira Gershwin, who would pooh-pooh if you even hinted he wasn't a native of Hollywood.

Howard Benedict paid local shows before he made the Hollywood trek where he now produces horror pictures for Universal. One of Warners' most important producers is Alex Gottlieb, who cried his release into local columns from the United Artists' flackery office on Seventh ave. in dear old Manhattan.

Manny Seff, of Claude Greneker's Shubert publicity staff, is now one of Hollywood's top free lancers. And Paul Yawitz, who sold his latest effort to Alfred Hitchcock for $75,000, graduated from the local Fox publicity office to Ned Wayburn publicity, to a column and to filmdom's do-re-mi.

Even N. T. G., Hollywood's top master of ceremonies, learned the ropes in Manhattan as Loew's press agent.

SONG WRITERS? Jack Gordon, Darryl Zanuck's pet, was a double-salami sandwich eater at Lindy's long before the happy Hollywood lariat noosed him.

Jimmy McHugh was as much a part of our scene as Central Park. Julie Styne and Jimmy Van Heusen never dreamed of moving farther west than the Hudson river showboat.

Then there are Harry Warren, Harry Akst, Doris Fisher and a flock of other ASCAP aces.

Beauty

Complexion, Clothes Match

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE
Beauty and Fashion Editor

SIMPLICITY is the word that best describes this Walter Florell beret of beautiful sculptured lines . . . of blue felt trimmed with Kelly green ribbons . . . a hat that is "all line." And Universal Filmstress Louise Allbritton is all-lovely in it. But despite its naked unadornment, it is one of the prettiest models . . . the hat and the girl . . . for it enhances Louise's charming complexion.

WHAT YOU WEAR in the Easter parade is your own business . . . but how your complexion looks to scrutinizing friends is mine. And we mean business when we harp so constantly on this complexion charm problem. Every girl loves a "creation" . . . but every man loves a face with the beautiful skin. Together . . . hat and complexion . . . make an incomparable combination.

"Symphony" is more poetic justice than musical truth . . . for this spring your complexion must be symphonious with your wardrobe. Clothes are so utterly too too and all that . . . so frankly vain and feminine . . . so chi chi and chic . . . that unless your facial expanse is perfect foil for the garb . . . the outlook is incongruous . . . like going to a swanky wedding in a pair of slacks.

And it doesn't require too much patience or time to develop a lovely complexion. Frankly the natural complexion is the loveliest . . . and the one we choose every time. Of course, the girl with the blemished skin does her darndest to cover up the evidence . . . for which she can hardly be blamed. But cover-up is not always the satisfactory way to eliminate the source of trouble . . . and all too often aggravates the condition.

More girls have been complaining about their complexions lately. And while we have our own thoughts on the matter . . . we'd rather just offer a panacea than a scolding at this time. The facial skin is not a turkish towel. It can take an awful lot of punishment . . . and usually it does. But there comes a time when it rebels . . . when it reaches its saturation point of neglect and indifference and literally breaks out in protest.

Think of your complexion like a swish of lovely chiffon . . . fragile and dainty . . . and treat it with the same utmost respect and delicacy. When you do that . . . before you know it . . . your complexion is back on to the road of loveliness . . .

And you can do this . . . if you take a noted cosmetic authority's prize product and apply it to your face daily. These industrious little grains work up into a lather that leaves your skin waiting for more and similar attention . . . until freshness and clarity are transmitted to the complexion.

For the name of these beauty grains for a beautiful complexion, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

THIS jewel-necked blouse in colorful Brazilian coffee flower handprint can add South American spice to any wardrobe. Rounded shoulders and full, tightly cuffed sleeves are noteworthy fashion details of this interesting Deauville-designed blouse . . . chic foil for a suit . . . and especially decorative for the already decorative model.— R. Casserole Dishes Swell For Lenten Season Menus

By MARTHA LEE, Household Editor

ALWAYS WELCOME at the dinner table are casserole dishes. The Lenten season is no exception because delicately flavored fish is well adapted to casserole cookery. And combining the fish with golden egg noodles, smooth mushroom soup, and nippy American cheese, makes a delightful oven dish even more tempting.

This excellent main dish, Noodle Crumble, gives the simplest menus a party-going air. The rich tuna fish-noodle combination may be baked in a family-sized casserole or in individual bakers. A cheery vegetable combination of bright green peas and sunny whole kernel corn, a basket of hard rolls, beverage and, for dessert, canned peaches complete this elegant dinner.

NOODLE CRUMBLE

1 tbsp. salt
3 qts. boiling water
6 ounces fine noodles
1¼ cups condensed mushroom soup (1 10½ oz. can)
1¼ cups milk ½ tsp. salt
⅔ cup flaked tuna fish (1 7-oz. can)
½ cup grated American cheese
½ cup buttered bread crumbs

Add salt to actively boiling water. Gradually add noodles and continue boiling until noodles are tender (about 4 minutes). Drain and rinse noodles. While noodles are cooking, combine soup, milk and salt. Arrange noodles around edges of individual baking dishes. Place tuna fish in center of dishes. Pour soup mixture over noodles and fish. Sprinkle cheese over mixture, and sprinkle bread crumbs evenly on noodles. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) about 25 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Tomato macaroni with cheese wedges and macaroni bake with broccoli are both handsome casseroles—handsome in eye-appeal, handsome in taste appeal, and as good for you as they are good to look at. Introduce their delightful goodness as the main dish at the family dinner.

TOMATO MACARONI WITH CHEESE WEDGES

1 tbsp. salt
3 qts. boiling water
6 ounces long macaroni
⅓ cup sliced onion
2½ cups cooked tomatoes (1 No. 2 can)
1 tsp. salt ½ tsp. pepper
⅛ clove garlic, minced
½ cup grated Swiss cheese
¼ lb. Swiss cheese, thinly sliced

Add 1 tablespoon salt to actively boiling water. Gradually add macaroni and continue boiling until macaroni is tender (about 8 minutes). Drain and rinse macaroni. While macaroni is cooking, combine onion, tomatoes, 1 tsp. salt, pepper and garlic. Fold in macaroni. Pour half the macaroni mixture into greased 1½-quart casserole. Sprinkle grated cheese on macaroni. Cover with remaining macaroni mixture. Cut sliced Swiss cheese in wedges and arrange cheese on macaroni in pinwheel fashion. Bake in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) about 30 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

MACARONI BAKE WITH BROCCOLI

1 tbsp. salt
3 qts. boiling water
6 ounces elbow macaroni
1½ cups medium white sauce
⅔ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing 1 tsp. salt
2 cups chopped cooked broccoli
½ cup grated American cheese

Add 1 tablespoon salt to actively boiling water. Gradually add macaroni and continue boiling until macaroni is tender (about 8 minutes). Drain and rinse macaroni. While macaroni is cooking combine white sauce, mayonnaise or salad dressing and 1 teaspoon salt. Fold in broccoli and macaroni. Pour into greased 1½-quart casserole. Sprinkle with Cheese. Bake in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) about 20 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Delinquent Bills Of Serviceman's Wife

Is there any way, through the government, to collect payment for bills made by the wife of an enlisted man? The person referred to traded at my grocery store and left town without settling with me. N. F.

This is a matter to be settled through civilan channels. The creditor will have to take the matter up with the proper legal agencies in the city in which the bills were incurred.

Procedure for Cards Sent To Office Co-Workers

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: I have been criticized by my office co-workers, and I would gratefully appreciate your comments or corrections on what I did. The head of one of our departments, taken seriously ill, was sent to a hospital. When we sent flowers to him, I wrote on the card to be enclosed the names of the executives in their respective order and the main office. The criticism of my co-workers is that I should have listed about 30 on the card. SECRETARY.

I believe your co-workers have a sound basis for their criticism. I judge (am I right?) that they objected to your listing the names of the individual executives and grouping your co-workers under the too-general classification of "main office." The name of every worker in the main office who contributed to the buying of the flowers, should have been listed individually, as the names of the executives were listed. Their contributions, no matter what the proportion, were as generously intended as the contributions of the executives, and they should have received the same individual recognition.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
I have a friend who has been home for the past few months and is now going back into the service. I would like to give a going-away party for him, inviting seven or eight couples.

1—Are the hours from 7:30 to 11 o'clock proper for such a party? If not, what could the hours be?

2—Is it correct to have the couples arrive at least a half hour before the guest of honor?

3—What sort of amusements, perhaps games, could be planned for? V. M. B.

1—Yes, these hours are excellent for an evening party.

2—Yes . . . if it's a surprise party.

3—Have you room for dancing, with radio or phonograph music? Would some of your guests like to play bridge or backgammon? And how about some group-singing of old songs and new? This generally makes a hit.

UNEXPECTED VISITORS—If they have a telephone there is no excuse for "dropping in" to see them. If they have no phone, don't expect them to change their plans because of your unexpected visit. It is not bad manners for a hostess to say, "We'll just have time for a short chat because I'm on my way to the dentist."

Navy Popular Color

By BETTINA BEDWELL

NAVY BLUE with white frosting around it somewhere makes the favorite color fashion of many a big-name designer. Like the first flower, this fresh combination seems to be spring itself. It may not act like a high-powered spotlight, to blind all eyes, but it has wonderful and lasting charm, and the most expert dressers love it.

You will find plenty of navy dresses and suits around, with their quota of clear and frosty white, and they are in the top ranks of the new styles. An example is the navy blue sheer wool dress in our sketch.

Designed by Jo Copeland, this dress has bows and bands of delicate white eyelet embroidery at the neck and wrists.

Film Triumphs Listed for Loew's

A group of sensational film triumphs sprinkled with the possibility of an exciting world premiere, in the Hollywood fashion, will mark Loew's festival of spring hits.

Most of the films will come from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. First of this group is "Adventure," which marks the return to the screen after a distinguished war service of Clark Gable, who will be co-starred with Greer Garson. Initial New England screenings at popular prices of the magnificent technicolor extravaganza "Ziegfeld Follies of 1946," with 13 stars and dozens of beautiful Follies girls, will follow.

William Powell's first picture in a year, "The Hoodlum Saint," is said to have one of the most unique themes Hollywood has ever filmed. Esther Williams and Angela Lansbury are his two leading ladies.

"Two Sisters From Boston," the script contributed by Myles Connolly, former Boston newspaper man, may be unfolded here for a memorable world premiere with the presence of stars and notables from every walk in life. The cast is headed by Kathryn Grayson, June Allyson, Jimmy Durante, Laurence Melcher and Peter Lawford.

For variety there will be shown "Bad Bascomb," which offers the combination of Wallace Beery and Margaret O'Brien.

The glamorous Lana Turner is teamed with John Garfield in "The Postman Always Rings Twice,"

ACADEMY AWARD-WINNER Ray Milland and his Academy Award-winning "Lost Weekend" have been so hospitably received at the Paramount and Fenway Theaters that it's a second week, beginning Thursday, for this happy teaming.

Condon's Jazz Concert At Symphony Sways Jam

By LEO GAFFNEY

Eddie Condon's second jazz concert at Symphony Hall—his first was a year ago—brought out fewer performers on the stage but more customers on the seats. The hall was nearly full.

And again it was jam session interspersed with odd solos, but even such numbers took on the impromptu nature of the evening, and improvisation went hog wild.

The only exception was the prepared solos of Joe Sullivan, the stunning white pianist from Chicago, who is said to have grown up with the late Bix Beiderbecke and to have performed with him in a band that included also Gene Krupa, Frank Teschmaker, Bud Freeman and Eddie Condon.

Sullivan has prodigious paws—like Horowitz. And like Horowitz he can do rhythm and melody simultaneously with his left hand, while cutting the most incredible didoes with his right IN OCTAVES!

Unless you saw it you wouldn't believe it. It is virtuosity that verges on pandemonium. The dissonances, all in blue, send shudders of delight through his bemused hearers. Yet, by gosh, it is remarkably clean playing. The Sullivan, a mighty man is he!

After his solos Sullivan shared, with pianist Gene Schroeder, who is remarkable, too, in the ensembles. They came in groups: now just a clarinet, now a horn, again all together, each and all paced by a gyrating drummer and a lunging bass.

The purpose, if one may interpret it, of this congress of caterwauling is to continually explore the possibilities of each instrument. The player, hopped up by the excitement of the rhythm, as well as by a sense of personal responsibility, knows that much is expected of him.

And so he "throws the book away" and gets right out into the wilderness of outlandish tonality, that undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveler seems able to return. Yet it is amazing how he remains within the melodic framework of the tune: no matter how imbecilic his strayings, there is a beginning, a middle and an end. And the boys funish as they began—together.

The compositions played were largely what you hear today, but there is the classic mold even in jazz. Clarinetist Joe Dixon yet clings to Gershwin's "My Man," unexcelled jazz melody, to show the peculiar "ring" of the instrument. So too George Brunies, although he clowned all over the place, seriously performed "St. Louis Blues" to exploit the full sonority of his big-belled trombone.

Max Kaminsky took a tone out of his trumpet that can only be described as stertorous. A man dying of apoplexy sometimes sounds like that. Mr. Kaminsky probably knows this and that his reward for being a daring pioneer will come in the Furioso of a horror symphony of some Hector Berlioz of the future.

The crowd last night was the most oddly composed. The regular symphony players were getting a load of it. The hep-cats were out, a lot of the regular symphony audience too. Even Arthur Fiedler was there, his snapping black eyes alight, his sharp ears missing nothing.

Wonder what he thought.

EDDIE CONDON, whose jazz concert in Symphony Hall last night assembled the greatest aggregation of hot musicians of our time.

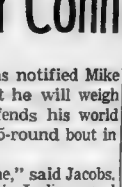
Jacobs Says Joe Louis To Weigh 210 for Conn

By JACK CONWAY

NEW YORK, March 12—Joe Louis has notified Mike Jacobs of the Twentieth Century Club that he will weigh between 210 and 215 pounds when he defends his world heavyweight title against Billy Conn in a 15-round bout in New York in June.

"I just talked with Louis on the telephone," said Jacobs. "Joe has been doing road work at his camp in Indiana, and he told me that he is confident he will scale between 210 and 215 pounds when he defends his title against Conn next June. Louis did not state how much he weighs now, but I think he is probably around 225 pounds.



Mike Jacobs

"While the champion was active in the Army, he packed on considerable weight, and he is anxious to take off this extra poundage before he meets Conn.

"Louis is one of the most faithful boxers ever to start working for a championship bout. He will devote all of the time necessary to get himself into the best possible condition for Conn. Joe tells me he is doing a great deal of road work. Five and six miles a day on the road, with a careful supervision of diet, will help the champion take off excess poundage.

"After his preliminary training, Louis will move to a camp in New Jersey where he will start boxing. Joe plans to get half a dozen of the best available sparring partners and he contends that with plenty of boxing he will sharpen up his judgment of distance.

"A great puncher like Louis will always be able to hit. The last thing a puncher loses is his ability to score with a kayo. Jack Dempsey proved this when he dropped Gene Tunney to the canvas in the battle of the long count at Chicago.

"Dempsey had lost his speed, but he could hit as hard as ever as Tunney will agree.

"It is Louis' punching ability that causes many people to believe he will be successful in defeating Conn. Billy will weigh more than he did for his last meeting with Louis. He has recently scaled as high as 190 pounds.

"I would like to see Conn around 180 to 183 pounds for his return bout with Louis. He would have his speed at this notch and he would also be able to hit harder than when he last met the champion.

"I thought Conn was leading Louis on points going into the 13th round of their last bout. Billy could have won the title if he had boxed Louis from that point on. Instead he tried to win the title by a kayo, and was knocked out himself.

"I do not believe there is a boxer in the world who can trade punches with Louis and survive. Conn tells me he will outbox Louis in their coming bout, and that he will not risk an exchange of blows with the Bomber."

Brisk Ticket Sale

Jacobs stated that even at this early date there is a brisk ticket sale. Strange as it may seem, the $100 ringside tickets are the ones most in demand. Large blocks of $100 tickets have already been purchased.

"The title bout may produce the first $3,000,000 gate in history," said Jacobs. "The present record is $2,400,000, set by Tuaney and Dempsey at Chicago. Top price for that show was $40. The $100 ringside scale for the coming quarrel sets a new high.

"I have agreed to give Louis 40 per cent and Conn 20 per cent of the receipts. Louis' share of a $3,000,000 gate will be $1,200,000. High federal taxes, however, will reduce Louis' earnings to ordinary figures. Conn will also contribute a great deal of money to taxes."

Great Baseball Boom

New York expects a great baseball boom this year. The Yankees, Giants and Dodgers should draw large crowds. The Giants had a particularly good year in 1945, and now, with a better club, it is believed that the Giants will attract even more fans.

The Yanks have the backing of the New York "smart" money to win over the Red Sox. It is believed that with stars like Joe DiMaggio and Charley Keller at the top of their form once more the Yanks will be able to beat off the threats of the Sox, Tigers and Indians.

Random Shots at Target

Boxing leaders in New York were surprised by the decision of the Chicago Stadium not to conduct any more professional boxing shows . . . It was pointed out that the Chicago Stadium has not been able to compete with the New York Garden-Mike Jacobs combine, and that it has been obliged to feature many second and third-class ring atractions . . . The Chicago Stadium is the largest indoor boxing arena in this country, and it cannot expect to draw capacity gatherings unless it has the best type of attractions.

New York racing, which will get under way on April 6, expects mutuel handles this year that will top $7,000,000 . . . The racing boom that has been going on in Florida this winter is expected to continue when the thoroughbreds reach New York.

Bruins Tackle Rangers In Fight to Hold 2d Rung

The second place Bruins, fighting to hold that spot in the National Hockey League, against the challenge of the Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings, will play the Rangers at New York tonight, in the first of a home and home series. The teams will play here at the Garden tomorrow night.

Manager Art Ross intends to stand pat with the Bruins which turned back the Toronto Maple Leafs on Sunday night in a furious third period six-goal scoring outburst. Roy Conacher, Bill Cowley and Terry Reardon will continue together as a new Bruins line, with Herb Cain the extra forward. Milt Schmidt centers for Woody Dumart and Bobby Bauer. Don Gallinger will play between Bill Shill and Bep Guidolin.

The Bruins, only a week away from the opening of the Stanley Cup play-offs, can practically clinch second place by a clean sweep of the Rangers series. Canadiens, with three games to play, cannot be overtaken mathematically by either the Bruins or Red Wings, and need one point to make it impossible for Chicago to tie them. Chicago has a terrific schedule playing four games in five days, three of them on the road.

In their previous eight games, the Bruins have won five, lost two and tied one against the Rangers, and still remember the 6-2 beating the New Yorkers handed them in their last Boston game. The Rangers defeated the Detroit Red Wings 3-2 on Sunday night.

Opening games of the first round of the Stanley Cup series will be played March 19 and March 21. The teams finishing first and second will have choice of ice for the first two games, and fifth and seventh games if necessary. The first place team will play the third place team, and the second place team the fourth place team in a best four out of seven series. The winners will meet for the Stanley Cup and world championship.

It is unlikely that the way oBston, Chicago and Detroit will finish will be determined before the final games Sunday when Chicago plays at Boston and Toronto at Detroit.

110 Million Backs Mexican Baseball

MEXICO CITY, March 12 (AP)—Mexican League president Jorge Pasquel said today he would accept U. S. Commissioner Happy Chandler's proposal for a U. S.-Cuba-Mexico baseball pact provided his circuit gets big league treatment. Commenting on Chandler's suggestion, Pasquel said: "If they want to make an agreement giving us treatment like the really big league we are, we're ready to enter into it. Otherwise we are ready to give them a terrific fight they never expected to have."

Pasquel asserted there is $50,000 cash in advance awaiting Bob Feller, Cleveland's ace pitcher, if he signs a three-year contract to play here.

"Even Feller doesn't know yet about that part of our offer to him," the Mexican League prexy said. Feller previously had turned down an offer to hurl in the Mexican League at a salary of $100,000 a year for the next three years.

In Havana, Bernardo Pasquel, peppery Mexican magnate and brother of Jorge, took a more uncompromising attitude, and announced:

"If the U. S. baseball officials want a baseball war, they will have it."

Bernardo, who with his four brothers, backs the Mexican league with a banking, ranching and trading fortune of some $60,000,000, said:

"Mexico is out to destroy the United States' monopoly on baseball.

"Directors of our eight-club league have combined resources of $50,000,000. That's in addition to the Pasquel fortune. We've got lots of pesos for lots of big-name, big-league performers and we're sure of winning the fight," he said.

Taking exception to Chandler's reference to his loop as an "outlaw" league, Bernardo declared "Mexican baseball is clean and not at all outlaw. In 21 years, the Mexican league never has known a scandal such as the infamous Black Sox episode in the United States.

"We believe Chandler is worried over Mexico's threat."

Bernardo said that next year his circuit expects to offer blank checks to Ted Williams, hard-hitting outfielder of the Red Sox; Hank Greenberg, Detroit, and Feller. "They can write their own ticket," he added.

He claimed he was currently in touch with seven major leaguers, "three of them in Washington."

Braves Use 'Regs' Against Phils

By BILL GRIMES

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 12—After breaking even in a home-and-home series last week, the Braves took the Phillies on again this afternoon at Flamingo Park.

Manager Billy Southworth was out towin this one for he brought his first varsity down from Ft. Lauderdale. The Tribe were beaten here last Thursday by a timely ninth inning single by Ron Worthey, but the following day they hung a 5 to 1 defeat on the Phillies at home behind the five-hit pitching of Mort Cooper and Johnny Sain.

Don Hendrickson, Elmer Singleton and Earl Reid were scheduled to hurl for the Braves. Hendrickson and Singleton haven't seen much action up to now. Hendrickson was 25 pounds overweight reportin: and Singleton was late arriving in camp. Reid has been out a couple of times but wasn't able to show his best. He was charged with the defeat here last week.

Johnny McCarthy, Connie Ryan, Sibby Sisti and Nanny Fernandez comprised the Tribe's starting infield, and 'Bama Rowell, Johnny Hopp and Tommy Holmes were in the garden.

The varsity will retire after six innings so that Southworth may have an opportunity to see more of some of the lesser lights. The second infield will be composed of Buddy Gremp, "Whitey" Wietelmann, Ted Cieslek and Jim Carlin, while Max West, Carden Gillenwater and Stan Wentzel will take over the outfield duties.

Jim Carlin is down here "on a look." He is a free agent and has asked for a bonus to sign a contract. Southworth is giving Carlin every opportunity to make the grade, but to date, the rookie has been only so-so.

Olympics Hunt Lions Tonight

Boston's tired Olympics skate out against the Washington Lions in the Nation's Capital tonight to complete a stretch that has seen them in action eight times in the past 12 days.

Washington, the team that finished last in the Eastern League with but 8 victories in 52 games, now looms as the team to beat in the current play-offs. They have not lost a tilt in the round robin so far.

Eddie Barry, who has missed the last two contests, is expected back tonight.

The Pics have completely reversed the usual hockey procedure. They have won all of their away-games and lost all of their home-played tilts.

Curbs on Hunting Ducks Seen Vital

NEW YORK, March 12 (AP)—A shorter hunting season or a reduced bag limit this fall—perhaps both—is the only means of guaranteeing ducks for the future, delegates to the North American wildlife convention were warned today.

Albert M. Day, making his first public address since being named director of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service last Thursday, explained that although conservation methods had increased the duck population during the first two years of the war the population had fallen in the final two years because of increased hunting.

Eighty days of shooting were permitted last year with a bag limit of 10.

"Last year the annual inventory showed a loss of 20,000,000 birds," Day said. "As much as the wildlife service hates to tighten this up, just when returned servicemen are able to take to the field again, I fear that a shorter season or reduced bag limit, or both, is going to be in order this fall."

Arcs at Fens by '47; Many Red Sox Ailing

By HERB FINNEGAN

SARASOTA, Fla., March 12—The Red Sox will be playing night baseball at Fenway Park in 1947, if not before, Major league baseball, in fact, will play day games only on Sundays and holidays a few years, hence. That is the consensus among Red Sox players themselves.

They forwarded several reasons: (1) the Braves have installed lights, and if one Boston club has night ball the other will have to follow suit; (2) baseball can't compete with horse racing as an afternoon attraction and must shift to night for the sake of the "gate" which pays players' salaries; (3) both Yanks and Giants have adopted night ball after watching the success it has been in Brooklyn, and Yawkey will fall in line with the Yankees.

It is locker room gossip among the Red Sox that Tom Yawkey planned to install lights in Fenway Park last year but couldn't get the necessary steel. He may get it in time for the football Yanks; if he does the Sox may be playing at night as early as August of this season.

The Sox are one of three major league clubs who do not play night ball at home. The other two are Detroit and Chicago Cubs. Both are champions of their respective leagues with tremendous followings. Detroit, a one-club town, has weakened to the extent it has scheduled six twilight games.

St. Louis Browns, which couldn't draw flies in the day, will play 42 games at night this season, nine of them against the Sox. Washington has 32 arc-light games scheduled, three of them against the Sox. The Fenway trouple also will play two night games in Philadelphia, two in New York, two in Chicago and two in Cleveland, a total of 21 night games on the road.

The players don't like it, naturally enough. As one said: "It's just like being a burglar; waiting around till dark to go to work." But they'll play because it means more dough in the club's coffers and consequently higher wages for the athletes themselves.

"Baseball was meant to be played in the day," they agree. "What price batting averages if Cobb, Heilmann, Sisler, Hornsby, etc., played all their games at day, and young fellows like Williams and Wakefield play half their games at night?"

Williams will hit at night, never fear; probably not as well as he does in the day but he'll hit. And don't forget: The Sox have the best night hitter in baseball in George "Cat" Metkovich. The records prove it.

All is not well with the Red Sox today, as the prospective A. L. Pennant winners faced the St. Louis Cardinals at Payne Field, there were many among their number who could not see service.

Among them were:

LEON CULBERSON — Fleet centerfielder who came to the Sox in '43, admitted today before the game "The knee hurts like hell." He had a cartillage removed by Dr. Tommy Richards last October, felt all right until a few days ago, suffered a recurrence in Sunday's game with the Indians, and is on the shelf for a while.

MACE BROWN—This personable relief pitcher, after 16 months on Guam, said recently, "I think the hot weather there helped me. I haven't had an ache or a pain in my body." He pitched two innings against the Senators in Havana, broke off a curve too sharply against Cecil Travis, suffered the first sore arm in his life. "Lay off two weeks," advised Trainer Win Green amidst diathermy treatments. It could be the end of Brown's big league career, a career that saw him pitch for Brooklyn in '41. Released toward the end of the season and not cut in on the World Series profits, organized baseball never has forgiven Durocher for that.

RANDY HEFLIN—Beau Brummel pitcher, who joined the Sox last Summer after two years in the Aleutians, came up with the first sore arm of his career this Spring. "Joe Cronin told me to lay off until it felt better," he said. Randy pitched good ball last Summer despite his won-lost record. Highlight was his shut-out victory over Detroit's Al Benton when that worthy was practically unhittable.

TY LAFOREST—Bothered with a sore arm since he came down here, the Dorchester lad had his teeth X-rayed today in hopes of clearing up the trouble. Has no chance to make the club even if arm and teeth are O.K.

SAM MELE—"Right handed Ted Williams" has Charley horse and will sit out for a couple of days, singled safely while pinch-hitting for Wilson in Havana. A fine prospect.

TOM McBRIDE—Complains of stiff neck but neck may be caused by stiffness of competition from DiMag, Culberson et als.

EDDIE McGAH—No. 2 catcher on Sox has sore index finger on throwing hand and has had little work, nevertheless, he'll remain No. 2. Cronin is satisfied the kid can field, hit, throw and he's as fast as Pesky.

JUNIOR ANDRES — Has bad leg, like Mele. Nevertheless, from buildup given him by Donie Bush and Mickey Cochrane, he's got grip on third base job which Pellagrini and Gilbert are trying to wrest from him.

JACK TOBIN — Right ankle bulged up overnight after wrenching it against Indians in difficult play at short. He wasn't going to figure anyway, but it's tough to see a kid released without having a chance to put up his hands. He'll be sidelined for at least three weeks.

Well, that is enough grief for one day, see you tomorrow.

Dick Sisler Hurt, Misses Hose Game

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 12 (AP)—First baseman Dick Sisler of the St. Louis Cardinals sprained his right ankle sliding into second base yesterday and was not slated to make today's trip to Saratosa for an exhibition game with the Boston Red Sox.

GIANTS BATTLE DODGERS

MIAMI, Fla., March 12 (AP)—Manager Mel Ott of the Giants named left-handed pitchers Dave Koslo and Warren Sandel to oppose the Dodgers today.

Improved Grip Beats Weather

By BYRON NELSON

As far as the development of new equipment goes, the greatest boon to us tournament golfers, and for that matter to any golfer who plays the game in rainy weather, was the development of the All-Weather Grip on golf clubs.

Leather grips, once they get wet, become too slick to permit the retention of the normal grip during the swing. That's why it wasn't unusual in the days before the All-Weather Grip was developed to see a golfer's club go flying down the fairway as he attempted to make a shot during wet weather.

You don't see that any more. Not on the tournament circuit, at least, because all the professionals are equipped to play in any kind of weather.

Aside from advising you to use the All-Weather Grip on your clubs, which is probably superfluous because most clubs are equipped with it anyhow, there are several other tips I would like to give you about playing golf in the rain.

Regardless of what kind of grips your clubs have, keep them as dry as possible. I'll be accused of trying to promote my own business when I say that every golfer should have an umbrella to keep his clubs and himself dry if he is caught in a shower while out on the course, but I'm saying it just the same.

If you have to play golf in the rain, remember it is essential to keep warm. You can't concentrate on your game if you are chattering from the cold.

As far as the mechanics of the game itself go, remember in wet weather to hit the ball first on all shots rather than the ground behind it because if you don't the water will get between the face of the club and the ball.

On wet days you're not going to get the distance you do when it's dry. The ball won't stay in the air as long because the rain offers more resistance. This should change your strategy in relation to the use of your clubs. For instance, on a shot where you normally might use a No. 4 iron, take a No. 3, etc.

Not only will wet weather affect your ball in the air, but it will affect it on the ground as well. The ball won't roll as far.

Remember on pitch shots that your ball is going to skid because the water is hard and will offer resistance.

It doesn't take much in the way of preparation for wet weather on the golf course, but it will pay off by reducing the number of strokes you would have to pay for errors caused by the lack of it. It's worth the time and effort.

90 YEARS A MUTUAL SAVINGS BANK

14 Years Since Mass. School Won N. E. Title

By MIKE GILLOOLY

It's been a long, long time since a Mass. entry has captured the New England basketball championship—14 years, in fact—and there's little doubt that the twin Bay State representatives this season, New Bedford and Westfield, will have a terrific tussle on their hands to break into the court elite.

New Bedford's first test will be against Nashua, N. H., while Westfield will match jumps with Pawtucket East, R. I., in the opening round at the Garden Thursday night.

Coach Win Dodge's Whalers needed every break in the Easterns tourney to reach the finals. They had more than one miracle escape from the brink but, if they can continue to ride with their fortune, they'll give the New Hampshire outfit plenty of trouble. Coach Tony Morandos, named "Coach of the Year" in his first term at Nashua, led his team to its only state title.

Westfield will be stepping into one of the oddities of the year in basketball in facing Pawtucket. Coach Art Nooney's outfit puts the "little" in Little Rhody in forward Vin Martley, a senior with three years of experience who just barely tips the 5-foot mark. Still, Martley has been named All-State for three years and recently was picked among the All-Tourney stars. He's a slick ball-handler, speedy, a nifty dribbler and rugged, despite his 112 pounds.

Martley will be surrounded with height, however, in 6.4 inch, 195-pound Gen Hanley, and 6-foot, 185-pound George Kayata, guards. Center Don Shannon stands 5.10 with "All" Fred Redkovich, 6.1, the leading scorer in Class A throughout the state, completing the starting team. That's the quintet that has chalked up a 21-4 record over the season.

Westfield, under Coach Bill Moge, will bring a 16-2 mark into the play-offs, scored by a team without a 6-footer in the starting line-up. The Westerners have lost to Holyoke High in winning the Valley League crown and to Sacred Heart of Holyoke in outside play, with a 59-56 triumph over Worcester Classical topping off this record.

Westfield caught on fire following the example of John "Yosh" Daly, forward, who teams with Angie Firoini and Center Irvin "Red" Larese. Guards will be Paul Gallo and Ray Fisher in an outfit that specializes in passing and quick breaks. Jerry Benoit will be used as a utility player.

Hillhouse High of Ct., as defending champion, will bring back three players from its squad of last year . . . all will remember Bill "Sam" Nakaso, the American-born Japanese boy who made the All Tourney team . . . one of the smoothest ball-handlers in the tournament . . . others of Sam Bender's club will be Joe Macknis and Bill Loos, regular guards.

$500,000 Waits PGA Tourists

MIAMI, Fla., March 12 (AP)—The PGA, through manager Fred Corcoran, announced today that its members will compete in 45 tournaments this spring and summer for more than $500,000.

Priest, Shkor, Blackwood Score

By BILL SMITH

It was a hard road back for Al "Red" Priest, 152, Cambridge, but the crowd-pleasing redhead made the grade with flying colors when he kayoed Nava Esparza, 146½, Mexico, in 2:58 of the eighth round of the feature 10-round bout at the Garden last night.

A sharp right punch to the jaw spilled the game and willing Mexican to the canvas for the fatal toll. Esparza had been dropped for nine count in the seventh frame but staggered up to finish the round.

Priest gave his rooters anxious moments in the early stages of the melee, and lost three out of the first four frames to the bobbing and weaving Esparza who fought from a crouch and nailed Priest with left hooks to the body almost at will.

Joe Blackwood, 158, Paterson, N. J., kayoed Frankie Terry, 159½, Brooklyn, N. Y. in 2:54 of the eighth round of a scheduled ten-heat battle.

Kid Chicken, 161½, a hard punching and elusive fighter from Pittsburgh, chopped Reedy Evans, 164½, Chicago, into a fine pulp as he scored a unanimous 10-round decision.

Making his first local appearance since his honorable discharge from the Navy, Johnny Shkor, 223½, Boston, scored a TKO award over Ralph Ivins, 189, Brunswick, N. J., after five rounds.

Star Fullback Returns to BC

Denny Myers, BC grid coach, was wearing a wide smile today because of the unexpected return to classes of Bernie Fitzgerald, 240-pound fullback.

A week ago, Myers did not have a single prospect to fill the fullback post, when in popped Tom Brennan, 210-pound plunger who was recently discharged from the Army. Now comes Fitzgerald.

The former Mission High star split the starting assignments with Brennan on the 1941 freshman team but entered the armed forces before the '42 season began.

With Brennan and Fitzgerald, Myers also has Bob Mangene, Bernie Lanoue, Willie Derosa and Bill Quinn in the backfield squad.

Streamline All U. S. Air Forces

WASHINGTON, March 12 (AP)—The Army Air Forces were streamlined today into three major combat commands by Gen. Carl Spaatz, who declared the atomic bomb made it "almost" certain any future war would begin with air action.

The new chief of the nation's air arm announced the following combat groupings for the postwar setup:

The Strategic Air Command, composed of long-range striking forces the Air Defense Command, responsible for the aerial protection of the Continental United States, and the Tactical Air Command, which will co-operate with surface forces.

Vets Rush for $1 Canton Lots

CANTON, March 12 (AP)—Eighteen of the best house lots in Canton—which a public-spirited manufacturer said he would sell to war veterans for $1 apiece—were snapped up today as more than a score of veterans rushed to lay their dollars on the line.

Tobe Deutschmann, who made the offer because "some people want to keep this town all parks," said he might have the veterans draw lots to determine who shall have the bargain property.

Deutschmann attended a town meeting last night and during a heated discussion over relaxation of zoning laws he made his offer because "something has to be done for the veterans in this town. They are destitute for homes.

Each plot is 6500 square feet, with a new road running through the property, situated on high land in one of the best sections of town, Deutschmann said.

Trainer Banned At Tropical Park

TROPICAL PARK, Fla., Merch 12 (AP)—The track stewards today suspended Trainer Clarence Reynolds for the balance of the meeting on a stimulation charge.

The Florida state chemist reported to stewards yesterday that analysis of a specimen of the horse Old Westbury, winner of the second race here on Saturday, March 9, showed positive signs of benzedrine. After a hearing before the stewards early today the license was suspended.

New Pauley Bid To Withdraw

WASHINGTON, March 12 (AP)—A new arrangement whereby Edwin W. Pauley would ask withdrawal of his nomination as Undersecretary of the Navy was reported in the making today.

A Republican member of the Senate naval committee said the deal was proposed at a two-hour conference of Pauley, Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan and two members of the committee.

Republican committee members, he said, will meet later with Sen. Tobey (R.) of New Hampshire, leading opponent of Pauley, to decide whether the terms meet approval.

This development, presaging a windup of the six-week-long controversy, came as a scheduled meeting of the naval committee on the nomination was called off. It had been set for 2:30 p. m., EST.

He Must Pay Bill For Break Row

George Grossman, 22, merchant mariner from Pittsburgh, was placed on probation today and ordered to pay a furniture repair bill after pleading guilty in Suffolks Superior Court to an indictment charging him with breaking and entering an East Boston home with intent to commit a felony.

The repair bill was for furniture demolished during a fracas when Ralph Melito of Winthrop st., East Boston, found the Pittsburgh man in his fourth floor apartment the night of Feb. 18.

Grossman was collared by Melito and some neighbors, police said, but not until the apartment was wrecked and Melito had lost a tooth and suffered a bitten arm.
